REUTER BUILDS ORGAN FOR CHURCH IN OMAHA

NEW EDIFICE TO HAVE 3-MANUAL

Cecil Neubecker Is Director of Music at All Saints Episcopal — Completion Next Summer

The Reuter Organ Company has been awarded a contract to build a new three-manual, 38-rank instrument for All Saints Episcopal Church, Omaha, Neb., a new $450,000 structure seating 500.

The pipework will be situated above and to the rear of the altar area behind the altar reredos. The great chorus and major portion of the pedal is unenclosed, with the swell and choir sections being individually expressive. Several of the great stops are expressive, located with the choir pipework.

The organ was designed by Frank R. Green, Sales Representative and Designer for Reuter, and Franklin Mitchell, tonal director, in consultation with Cecil C. Neubecker, Director of Music for the church. The instrument is scheduled for completion next summer.

WYTON, NEAR AND SIMON HOLD SESSION IN CHORAL READING

A choral reading session led by Alec Wyton, J. Wells Near and William Simon will be held under the auspices of Carl Fischer Music Service at the Juilliard School. The session will be held Jan. 21 at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York City. New anthems of many publishers will be read, both for general use and for the seasons from Lent to Trinity Sunday.

Write Wesley Bartlett, Carl Fischer Music Service, 120 Claremont Ave., New York 27, N.Y.

W. William Wagner, for 11 years organist-choirmaster of the Old Stone Church, Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 2 becomes minister of music of the Mount Lebanon Methodist Church, Pittsburgh, Pa., a congregation of 3,200 members.

Mr. Wagner also served as organist-choir director of the Temple-on-the-Heights, Cleveland Heights. Both his temple and his church choirs have appeared frequently on radio and television programs on Cleveland stations and on national networks. The Oratorio Choir, a group of 18 professional singers organized his first year in Cleveland, was featured on a television program Nov. 25 in tribute to the late President Kennedy. Last Good Friday the same group provided musical portions for a three-hour television program dramatizing events of Holy Week.

At the Old Stone Church Mr. Wagner has conducted more than 100 oratorio programs — many of the standard works as well as first Cleveland performances of ancient and contemporary compositions. He also played ten organ recitals at the church.

Active in AGO affairs, he served as dean of the Cleveland Chapter. For eight years he was chairman of the Cleveland Conference on Church Music. In his new post Mr. Wagner will direct a large multiple choir program and preside at a 1955 three-manual Aeolian-Skinner organ.

JOHN WEAVER ENDS SERVICE RESUMES RECITALS, CHURCH

John Weaver completes his two years active duty in the Army Feb. 9. He has been stationed at the U.S. Military Academy, West Point, as organist and choir director at the post chapel. The chapel choir under his direction has sung the Pachelbel Magnificat, part 2 of Handel's Hallelujah, the Mozart Requiem and a portion of the Bach B minor Mass, all with orchestra.

In his absence from Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, New York, the music program has been under the direction of Joan Holt Lippincott. She and Mr. Weaver have worked together as organist/conductor in the oratorio series long a tradition of the church.

Mr. Weaver's recital activities, somewhat curtailed during his service, will resume with a full schedule this Spring. He will return to Holy Trinity Church Feb. 12, where a new three-manual Aeolian-Skinner organ will be installed in the coming year.

FERNANDO GERMANI played the organ works of Frescobaldi Nov. 26, 29 and Dec. 6 at New York's Central Presbyterian Church under the sponsorship of Istituto Italiano di Cultura.

Technique . . . "the art of playing the simplest melody with the utmost difficulty."

The above definition calls attention, facetiously of course, to the fact that some players have been known to take refuge in this one phase of the performing art. Manual and pedal proficiency — the ability to deliver with relatively few miscues — should be taken for granted at a recital of a first-class performer. An artistic presentation demands a great deal more than flashing dexterity, though to be sure, this must be present in abundance.

DISTINGUISHED STAFF SET FOR SOUTHERN BAPTIST MEET

The first nation-wide conference of Southern Baptist musicians is set for Feb. 11-13 at Louisville, Ky. Thirteen simultaneous conferences on phases of church music education will be held on the afternoons of Feb. 12 and 13.

A faculty of music educators invited for the conference includes: Federal Lee Whittlesey, Dallas; Mabel Stewart Boyter, Atlanta; Harry Robert Wilson, New York City; W. Lawrence Curry, Philadelphia; Cecilia Ward, Alexandria, La.; Claude Rhea, Houston; Travis Shelton, Dallas; Robert B. Smith, Urbana, Ill.; Madeleine Marshall, New York City; Hugh T. McElrath, Louisville; H. Max Smith, Wake Forest, N.C.; Louis O. Ball, Jr., Jefferson City, Tenn.; Dorothy Brin Crocker, Dallas; Robert S. Douglass, Fort Worth.

The conference commemorates 20 years of organized music work in the denomination. It is under the direction of the church music department of the Baptist Sunday School Board, Nashville, in co-operation with the state music departments of the SBC.

BIGGS SOLOIST ON SYMPHONY SERIES AT WICHITA, DETROIT

E. Power Biggs was soloist with two symphony orchestras the last two weeks of November. At Wichita, Kans. Nov. 16, 17 and 18 he played Handel Concerto 13 (Cuckoo and Nightingale) and the Sowerby Concerto in C at a series of three concerts commemorating the 20th anniversary season of the Wichita Symphony Orchestra. James Robinson conducted in the First Methodist Church.

The following week he played the same Handel and the Barber Toccata Festiva with the Detroit Orchestra at the Ford Auditorium. Eugene Jochum conducted.

A RECITAL FOR VIOLA and organ was heard Nov. 17 at the First Presbyterian Church, Wilmington, N. C. with Laura Howell Schorr, violinist and Charles Woodward, organist. The program included Bach, Marais, Mozart, Telemann, Hindemith and Vaughan Williams.

John R. Rodland has been appointed the first full-time minister of music of the First Presbyterian Church of Rutherford, N. J., as of Sept. 1. He has served the church on a part-time basis for two years, while a student at the school of sacred music of Union Theological Seminary. In his new appointment Mr. Rodland will build a full choir program for this large suburban church, which previously depended upon the services of a quartet.

Mr. Rodland, a native of Altoona, Pa., holds a BA degree from Juniata College, Huntington, Pa., and last May he received his MSM magna cum laude from Union Seminary. His organ teachers have included Hayden C. Oliver, Altoona; Donald S. Johnson, Juniata College, Alec Wyton, and Vernon de Tar.

While a student at Juniata College, Mr. Rodland was organist and choir master of the First Lutheran Church of Tyrone, Pa., and was secretary of the Central Pennsylvania AGO Chapter.

MILDRED ANDREWS was guest clinician at a workshop Nov. 9 on the campus of Eastern Kentucky State College, Richmond; there were 57 registrants.

VERNON WALCOTT played Concerto 2 in B flat, Handel, with the Bowling Green, Ohio, State University chamber orchestra Nov. 24 with Harry Kruger conducting.

JOHN RUST TO BE ENGLISH GUEST AT WA-LI-RO SESSIONS

John Rust, MA, MusB, ARAM, ARCM, comes from England to join the Wa-Li-Ro faculty for the 31st school for choirmasters. He has studied organ and choir work at Canterbury Cathedral and the Royal School of Church Music with Dr. Gerald Knight; at Westminster Abbey with Sir William McKie; and at Cambridge University with Dr. Boris Ord. He has been associated with two London churches, two preparatory schools for boys and the Birmingham School of Music.

He will instruct the two weeks of July 6 and 13 with a final festival service in Grace Church, Sandusky July 17. Dr. Leo Sowerby has composed a special anthem for the occasion which he will direct at the final service.

Paul Allen Beymer and Warren Miller are arranging the programs.

FALLING CEILING NO BAR TO ST. GEORGE ACTIVITIES

St. George's Church, New York City, has been doing a notable job of making the best of adversity. Because of falling ceiling plaster, the church had to be closed for repairs. Its major activities have been held in a variety of locations and under many circumstances.

The church's Rally Day was held Nov. 17 in the Seventh Regiment Armory, "the first time the whole parish has been together this year." Church Decoration Night with carol singing was divided Dec. 19 between Olmsted Hall and outdoor Stuyvesant Square, across the street from the church.

St. George's candlelight carol service with choir and choral society of 150 voices was held Dec. 22 in Temple Emanu-El.

The annual concert of sacred music with the choir and choral society directed by Charles N. Henderson and with E. Power Biggs as guest organist, will be held Jan. 26 in Lincoln Center.

ORGANISTS MAY COMPETE for the Kate Neal Kinley memorial fellowship offered by the University of Illinois; write Dean Allen S. Weller, College of Fine and Applied Arts, G. Donald Kaye became organist-choir-master of the Green Ridge Presbyterian Church, Scranton, Pa. effective Oct. 1, leaving the West End Methodist Church, Nashville, Tenn., which he has served as minister of music since 1958. At Nashville he broadcast regularly over station WSM, was heard as organ recitalist on the Fisk University series and at Christ Church and West End Methodist. His articles on hymnody, organ and choral music have appeared in Music Ministry magazine, Adult Teacher and other Methodist publications.

Mr. Kaye was awarded the C. F. Peters prize upon graduation from the Juilliard School in 1957 where he was a student of Vernon DeTar. He received a bachelor degree from Wilkes College, Wilkes-Barre, Pa. in 1955 where he studied organ and choral conducting with Clifford Balshaw. He also attended the Manhattan School of Music, New York City, where he studied choral conducting with Hugh Ross.

He is married to Jean Bohn Kaye who has become organist-choir-master at the Episcopal Church of the Good Shepherd, Scranton. She is a graduate of New York University and is a former student of Clifford Balshaw.

CAPITAL CHURCH ORDERS THREE-MANUAL MÖLLER

PEOPLES CONGREGATIONAL

Late 1964 Installation Scheduled —
Clyde T. Parker Organist-Director in D. C. Edifice

The Peoples Congregational Church, Washington, D.C. will have a new three-manual Möller organ installed late in 1964. Alterations to the organ space and tone openings, as well as an exposed great division, are being planned to achieve maximum tonal egress. The organist-choir director is Clyde T. Parker, and the chairman of the organ procurement committee, Wilson Hull. Möller's area representative, L. B. Buterbaugh, handled all negotiations, and the specifications were designed by Möller tonal staff in consultation with the church.

Harold C. O'Daniels, organist-choirmaster of Christ Church, Binghamton, N. Y., has joined the faculty of two colleges this fall. He is teaching organ at Hartwick College, Oneonta, N. Y., and Harpur College, Binghamton, N. Y.

Mr. O'Daniels has been organist-choirmaster at Christ Church for some 20 years and is well-known in the area as a teacher of organ. He holds a B.S. degree from Ithaca College and an SMM from Union Theological Seminary where he studied organ with Dr. Robert Baker and Dr. Charlotte Garden. At Ithaca College he studied with Louise C. Titcomb.

The Tuesday noon organ recitals at Christ Church have become a regular part of the church program. These are shared by Mr. O'Daniels with his students and occasional visiting artists. This season the recital period has been extended to cover a full hour, each recital being played from 12:05-12:30 and then repeated from 12:35-1:00.

New Choral Music

Not a very large variety of choral music has reached us since the last column. Many of our most consistently represented publishers sent in nothing at all this month, perhaps feeling that until the holidays were gone and forgotten, choir leaders were not likely to be in a very receptive mood.

A publisher from whom we hear infrequently, E. C. Schirmer, has sent us a considerable stack this month. This is dominated by some large works by Randall Thompson, whose curtailed duties at Harvard have apparently provided time for a burst of creative activity. An engraved edition of his large dimension Requiem, completed in 1958 is now available. Unaccompanied, the work sometimes requires three mixed choruses. Dr. Thompson's skill in choral writing is too widely acclaimed to require any comment; surely this work will find many performances, especially in college situations.

Thompson's The Nativity according to St. Luke is still in a photocopy edition from manuscript. The work had an auspicious introduction in the home area of THE DIAPASON a couple of seasons ago and will be heard there again between the dates this is written and read. The work is termed a "musical drama" and staging directions are given; orchestration for chamber orchestra is available on rental or for sale.

Thompson's A Feast of Praise is also in a temporary photolith edition. This is a three-section cantata for mixed voices, seven-instrument brass choir and harp, with instrumental parts for sale. This is a work well within the limits of many school and even church situations. Completed only last July, it could prove a very useful addition to this kind of literature. Dr. Thompson's final representation is a short unaccompanied The Best of Rooms, needing the same sort of careful, rangy singing as the composer's celebrated Alleluia.

For the season just ahead, E. C. Schirmer's stack offers but little: Ego ipse consolabor vos by Frank H. Smith, in unaccompanied counterpoint with Latin and English text, and a Spanish carol, Christ Is Arisen, arranged by Victoria Glaser with tambourine and castanets.

For next Christmas, on the other hand, E. C. Schirmer includes several. For mixed voices are an a cappella setting by Daniel Pinkham of a Robert Hillyer poem, Christmas Eve, and arrangements by Victoria Glaser of carols from several lands: Strangers Say a King Is Born, Now the Rarest Day and Gloria in Excelsis, all three Czech; Polish He Is Sleeping in a Manger; Puerto Rican Villancico with tambourine and castanets, and Italian The House of David. For women's voices by the same arranger are: What Child Is This (Greensleeves), Hush My Dear, Lie Still and Slumber (on a German chorale) and German The Christmas Nightingale. The final number from this publisher is an Arthur Talmadge SSAA of Attwood's familiar Teach Me, O Lord.

Concordia has issued an entirely practical edition by Leland Lillehaug of 17th century Andreas Hamerschmidt's Easter cantata, Now Death Is Devoured, for two mixed choirs, two instruments (trumpets or violins, he says) and keyboard. This is not the sort of music one could expect just any choir and congregation to take to their hearts, but where a climate for music of many periods has been created, here is surely a work to study.

Concordia continues to issue practical editions of many early works. We are a little amused to find the double chorus, This Is the Day, listed on the cover as by Gallus, while Behold a Hallowed Day is listed by Handl — the same composer in the Latin and Germanic versions of his name. There is a Lassus Benedictus es, Domine which, like the two Gallus-Handl above, has Latin and English text; O Eternal God by 18th century Gasparini and a big William Croft anthem, Deliver Us, O Lord, edited by Richard Peek round out the older works.

Richard Hillert is continuing his series of "Gospel motets" for Concordia, the latest pair an a cappella If Anyone Keeps My Word and an accompanied Receive the Holy Spirit, the latter from the Gospel for Easter I. Robert Powell has an unaccompanied motet, Wilt Thou not Turn again? and S. Drummond Wolff another in the same category, Lenten Turn Thy Face from My Sins. Jan Bender's Christ Is Arisen uses choir, congregation, brass quartet and organ on the Christ ist erstanden tune; he also has one of those "chorale concertatos", God the Father, Be Our Stay, based on a strong, simple old tune. Paul Bunjes, who apparently originated the form for Concordia, also has a new chorale concertato, How Can I Thank Thee, provided with extensive performance directions.

An old standard Concordia compilation by Walter Wismar, Redeeming Love — Lenten and Funeral Music, has been updated and revised. It contains some 25 chorales.

Augsburg sends one work, but a fairly extensive one: Jean Berger's three-movement work (triple motet?) for unaccompanied double chorus, How Lovely Are Thy Tabernacles. The three movements come separately and each is a sizeable piece. Directors who have the choral resources should certainly have a look at this.

Carl Fischer has reissued the Michael Diack abridged version of Handel's Solomon, designed to make the masterpiece available for more limited choral situations. The reproduced printing does not make for very easy reading. The same publisher has a combined-choir anthem by Paul Van Dyke, Let Us with a Glad-some Mind, suggested for Thanksgiving, and a simple effective three-stanza Humbly I Adore Thee by John Leo Lewis. — FC

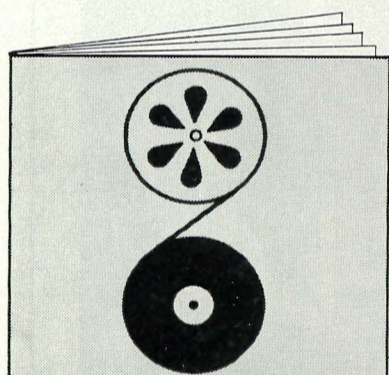

A FESTIVAL SERVICE for choirs affiliated with the Royal School of Church Music was heard Nov. 10 at New York City's Cathedral of St. John the Divine; 16 choirs from New York State, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Virginia participated.

A STUDY of existing Operatic scores reveals some thirty-six of them indicating the use of organ or harmonium. We have been commissioned by Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts to build an instrument for the new Metropolitan Opera House, scheduled to open in the Fall of 1966.

The tonal resources of the organ are being designed to encompass the current repertoire. Possible demands by Operas to be composed in the future have also been anticipated.

The instrument will be completely self-contained and portable (including a 32' Bombarde), making it possible to locate it in a variety of positions. Consequently, the sound can be made to come in a direct, valid manner from such areas of the scenery as might be assigned to an organ by the scenic designer. The organist can carry the light, completely portable aluminum console to either the orchestra pit or backstage areas. When not in use the instrument may be taken from the stage by elevator and stored in an air conditioned area four stories below.

Where imaginative design, a regard for the music and reliability are the determining factors, Aeolian-Skinner organs appear.

Jackson

The Jackson, Miss. Chapter held its Nov. 2 meetings in the recital hall of the Millsaps College campus. Officers listed in the December issue were installed by Don Kilmer, immediate past-dean. The chapter awarded honorary memberships to its two senior organizing members, Mrs. J. Virgil Posey and Leona K. Vinson. These presentations were made by Mrs. T. A. Bratcher. A highlight of the meeting was a history compiled by Mrs. Vinson with an account of the first gathering of interested organists Oct. 24, 1954. Sub-dean Will Tate, in charge of the program, had prepared lists of organ music suitable for the service, and Don Kilmer played several of these listed members: Chorale Preludes, Walther and Willan; Chorale, Zachara; Ballade in D, Clokey. Welcomed as guests were members of the student groups from Millsaps and Mississippi Colleges.

Gulf Coast

The Gulf Coast Chapter met Oct. 21 in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Stanley Hackman, Biloxi, Miss. Dean Raymond Barnes presided. It was pointed out that several members had moved away in the summer. A discussion was held regarding prospective members. Programs for the season were discussed. A calendar of events was approved and adopted. Possible guest recitalists were discussed. The evening was spent informally around a barbecue and enjoying the new Hackman home on the river bank.

RAYMOND J. BARNES

Muscle Shoals

The Muscle Shoals, Ala. Chapter and the music department of Florence State College sponsored Margaret Wright, organist, and Neil Wright, baritone, in recital Oct. 13 at the First Methodist Church.

A Dutch dinner was held in their honor Oct. 12 at the Town and Country Room, Holiday Inn, Florence, by the members and their husbands.

CATHERINE NORTON

Miami

The Miami, Fla. Chapter held its annual hymn festival Nov. 19 in the First Methodist Church of South Miami. An enthusiastic audience joined with 16 choirs, three organists and a brass ensemble in a program of hymns, anthems and organ solos. The conductor, David F. Smith, was assisted by Dale Willoughby, Marten I. Neff and David Brodie at the three-manual Allen, and by a brass ensemble directed by Philip H. Fink. Mrs. Grady Norton, past-dean, coordinated the program.

Fort Lauderdale

Members of the Fort Lauderdale Chapter toured the chambers of the newly installed three-manual Möller at the First Presbyterian Church Nov. 3 at the invitation of organist Charlotte Mitten and choir director Richard Mitten.

A roundrobin recital was played by members of the chapter Nov. 18 at the Second Presbyterian Church following a short business meeting. Works of Vivaldi-Bach, Weinberger, Purvis, Boellmann, Whitney and Langlais were played by Letti Ozaki, Nancy Larson, Sue Ann Mitchell, Michael Murphy, Leoma Straker and Linda Howell.

FRANCES M. SCOTT

Fort Myers

The Fort Myers, Fla. Chapter's Nov. 19 meeting at the Redeemer Evangelical Lutheran Church was a choral and organ program of Advent and Christmas music by contemporary composers. Its object was to learn more about composers of this century by playing and singing their music. Programs listed the texts of the works sung and gave capsule biographies of the principal composers represented. The chapel choir of the host church sang works by Warlock, Peeters and Dirksen under the leadership of Thomas Walters who also played organ works of Clokey, Yon, Dupré, Rowley, Purvis and Sowerby to close the program. Louise Elliott played organ works of Moser, Miles and Gaul at the opening.

Spartanburg

The Spartanburg, S. C. Chapter met Nov. 26 at the Episcopal Church of the Advent. Sub-dean John Bullard presided. A recital of Christmas music contained this organ music: Noël, Daquin, Anna McGregor; Four Advent and Christmas Chorale Preludes, Rachel Pierce; La Nativité, Langlais, W. T. Bradley; Variations on an old Christmas Carol, Dethier; Thomas Lyles, Jr.; A Christmas Prelude, John Bullard. After the program the group enjoyed a social hour.

Chattanooga

The Chattanooga, Tenn. Chapter met Nov. 25 at the Lutheran Church of the Ascension with Eric Stephens, host organist. Following dinner and the business meeting members adjourned to the church proper where a program of new anthems and organ music were heard. Members who played the organ and directed the group in singing were Mrs. Frank Green, Isa McIlwraith, Mrs. William C. Wheatley, Evelyn Gibbs, Jerry McSpadden, Everett O'Neal and Harold Sweitzer.

St. Petersburg

The St. Petersburg, Fla. Chapter honored ministers as guests at a luncheon Nov. 12 in the Driftwood Gold Room. Featured speakers were Don Mathis who spoke on Possible Improvements in Our Services of Worship and Thomas Bricetti, conductor of the St. Petersburg Philharmonic, who brought an inspiring message. Music was provided by Dr. William Waters, accompanist, and Shelly Smith, soprano, Florida Presbyterian College.

A reception and membership tea was given in the gardens of the Huntington Hotel Nov. 30. A musical program was in charge of Fred Martin, organist, a choral ensemble from Boca Ciega high school directed by Christine Baker and the carol choir of St. Luke's Methodist Church, directed by Walter C. West.

Upper Pinellas

The Nov. 2 meeting of the Upper Pinellas Chapter was held at the Skycrest Methodist Church, Clearwater, Fla. with a panel discussion on The Relationship of the Clergy and the Church Musician. The panel, introduced by the dean, Mrs. Edward Young, comprised Dr. J. Thomas West, Florida Presbyterian College; the Rev. Paul Kinports; the Rev. David Stover; Donald Mathis and Robert Grow. The meeting was opened to the public; local ministers were guests. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Arthur White and Margaret Dunn.

Greenville

The Greenville, S. C. Chapter met Nov. 19 at the First Baptist Church. Stephen Farrow was in charge of a program of recorded organ music illustrating tonal design from the 18th to the 20th centuries. Builders illustrated included Arp Schnitger, Cavallé-Coll, Aeolian-Skinner, Möller, Harrison and Harrison, Holtkamp and Austin. Further details of the Alec Wyton Workshop were announced.

Pittsburgh

The Pittsburgh Chapter met Nov. 25 at the Bellefield Presbyterian Church, Oakland. Howard Ralston was host-organist. Following the dinner and a short business meeting, Paul Koch gave a talk on the new Beckerath organ in St. Paul's Cathedral, elaborating the details of the 97-rank instrument. Mr. Koch directed members to the cathedral where he revealed additional details and extended the opportunity to members to play.

BERTHA MARSH FRANK

Harrisburg

The Harrisburg, Pa. Chapter sponsored Donald McDonald Nov. 12 in recital at the Pine Street United Presbyterian Church. Mr. McDonald was the first guest artist to play the organ described on page 42 of the December issue. After the recital members and friends honored Mr. McDonald with a reception in the social hall of the church. The program appears in the recital pages.

The chapter held its Christmas party Dec. 7 at the home of the dean, Mrs. Robert K. Jones, in which an organ and two pianos provide an ideal setting for an informal program of Christmas music. Besides carol singing by the group, a vocal trio sang directed by Mrs. O. M. Kennedy. A gift exchange followed the program; refreshments were served by the social committee. Announcement was made of the recital by Michael C. Korn in St. Matthews Lutheran Church Dec. 8 which appears in the recital pages. Kenneth Landis, Messiah College, Grantham, will play Jan. 5 in the Market Square Presbyterian Church.

IRENE BRESSLER

Reading

The Nov. 9 meeting of the Reading Chapter was held at the Trinity Lutheran Church, Kutztown, Pa., with Dean Richard Wagner as host organist. The meeting was a panel discussion on The Role of Music in the Education of Our American Youth. The moderator of the discussion was William Maier; the panelists: Dr. H. L. Hendricks, superintendent of Gov. Mifflin Schools; the Rev. Dr. John Frantz, Pottstown; Donald Hinkle, Boyertown; Arlean Weidner, supervisor of public school music, Reading schools. The main point made was conflicts between church events and rehearsals and school events, and the question of allegiance. Dr. Hendricks suggested that lines of communication be kept open between schools and churches and that an attempt be made to ease conflicts. A past dean's pin was presented to Rachel Kooker. Robert Arnold announced the first meeting of the student group Nov. 23 at Brown's Music House.

Detroit

The Detroit Chapter met Nov. 18 at the Community Arts Auditorium, Wayne State University, to hear a choral concert by the Kenneth Jewell Chorale. This ensemble of 30 sang works by Gabrieli, Poulenc, Bach, Brahms and Vaughan Williams. The program was dedicated to Sixten Ehrling in recognition of his appointment as conductor of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

—first choice
of organ builders
for generations

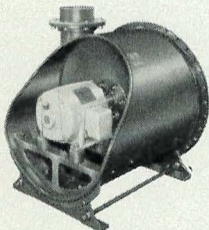

The reasons are quite simple, we discovered. But they make all kinds of sense. Rated as most important were:

RELIABILITY—"We can count on Orgoblo." "...adequate capacity" "...can be sure it will last as long as the organ." "...reliable performance."

SERVICE—"... good to know it's available immediately." "Your splendid cooperation is much appreciated." "...man was here the same day."

SPARE PARTS—"Records you keep make a big difference." "The assistance you provide protects our reputation." "... important to know our customers will be taken care of." Reactions like these explain why Orgoblo has been first choice for over fifty years.

*Re-builders, also. We checked them, too!

PROMINENT EL PASO CHORAL DIRECTOR IS DEAD AT 63

Jack Griffin, well-known choral director and voice teacher of the El Paso, Tex. area died Nov. 30 at the age of 63. He had served as president of the National Society of Arts and Letters and the El Paso Music Teachers Association, had been director of the El Paso Civic Chorus and of the post chapel choir of Fort Bliss, had been on the faculty of the Texas Western College and had served as music director of the First Methodist Church.

A voice student in Boston, New York, London, Vienna, Los Angeles, Madrid, Milan and Berlin, he had lived in El Paso since 1939. He is survived by a sister and a brother.

New Organ Issues

Organ issues of something more than routine interest have reached us this month.

Of special historical and pedagogical as well as musical interest is Norbert Dufourcq's volume 2 of the 1665 Nivers Premier Livre d'Orgue, a landmark in the history of organ music. Bornemann of Paris publishes this. It contains "pieces" 7 through 12 of the 100 in the complete work; each "piece" contains as many as eight separate sections, making this less than seven per cent of the whole a substantial volume in itself.

A volume 1 of Postludes for Organ arranged by Homer Whitford (Flammer) is a set of rather short transcriptions from familiar standard sources. Some of them, such as a Franck Violin Sonata movement, do not survive the transition well. Most of the dozen are difficult enough to cause one to question why a player would choose to play them in preference to the enormous library of real organ music available.

The wide popularity of Gardner Read's first set of Preludes on Old Southern Hymns guarantees wide interest in his second set just issued by H. W. Gray. We expect these to start appearing immediately in our recital columns.

In Gray's St. Cecilia series are: a useful but conventional Prelude on Divinum Mysterium by T. Frederick H. Candlyn; Robert Jaques' Prelude on a 15th Century Carol, a set of variations on This Endris Night; two rather ingenious carol arrangements by Jean Pasquet: In Bethlehem and Deck the Halls, the latter with a fugato. Transcriptions in the series include one by Chester Kingsbury on Forest Music by Handel, and four by Virgil Fox, familiar from his recitals and recordings: Giga, Bossi; Rigaudon, Campra; Adagio, Vivaldi; Ye Sweet Retreat, Boyce.

From Mills come a small Pastel by Clifford Roberts, Two Vignettes by Sydney Kendal for possible service use, and transcriptions by Laurence Ager of Two Songs by Peter Cornelius (Rememberance and The Shepherd's Watched).

From E. C. Schirmer we have: Four Short Pieces for Manuals by Daniel Pinkham in a fresh style; Das alte Jahr vergangen ist (Three Approaches and a Coda) by Ernst Levy; Three Preludes on Gregorian Hymns (Ave Maris Stella, Ave Verum Corpus and Veni Creator Spiritus) some attractive canonic writing by Hugo Kaudler. — FC

A 500-VOICE CHOIR from churches of all denominations in the Wilmington, N.C. area sang for the 133rd annual session of the North Carolina Baptist convention Nov. 12, 13 and 14, under the direction of Walter D. Ross with Charles Woodward accompanying.

Barrett L. Spach, head of the organ department at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill. died in Wesley Memorial Hospital, Chicago Nov. 29 after a short illness. He was 65.

Born in Chicago, Dr. Spach was trained both in this country and Europe. He attended the University of Chicago and graduated from the Mannes School (now Mannes College of Music) New York City. After his graduation he spent five years of study in Europe which included work with Marcel Dupré and with Nadia Boulanger. His longtime friendship with André Marchal resulted in many of that organist's visits to America and with study with Marchal by many American students.

Dr. Spach became assistant to Eric DeLamarter at Chicago's Fourth Presbyterian Church in 1929, succeeding him in 1935. He remained in this post until his retirement in 1959. He was a recitalist and lecturer and before his appointment to the Northwestern faculty had taught at the Meadville Seminary of the University of Chicago.

Dr. Spach has been dean of the Chicago (then Illinois) AGO Chapter and more recently was one of the founders of the North Shore Chapter. His widow, contralto Maurine Parzybok, his mother and a sister survive.

Francis S. Moore, veteran Chicago organist and choir director, died Nov. 28 at the Illinois Masonic Hospital at the age of 85. He had been active in AGO affairs and had served the Chicago Chapter as dean and in many other capacities.

Dr. Moore's longest church tenures were 31 years at the First Presbyterian Church and 26 at the First Methodist Church of Oak Park. At 17 he was the first organist of the Chicago Opera Company. His organ study was with Clarence Eddy and with Alexandre Guilmant.

Mrs. Moore survives her husband.

JAMES R. GILLETTE PASSES IN NORTH SHORE SUBURB

James R. Gillette, retired organist and choir director of the First Presbyterian Church of Lake Forest (North Shore Chicago suburb) died at his home there Nov. 26 at the age of 77. He was formerly chairman of the music department of Carleton College, Northfield, Minn. and had served as municipal organist of Evansville, Ind. He was the composer of anthems and organ music.

Mrs. Gillette, a daughter and a son, survive.

Dr. Hugh Giles, director of music at the Central Presbyterian Church, New York City for almost 27 years, died Dec. 6 in New York Hospital. He was 57.

Hugh Giles was born in Greenville, S.C. and received a bachelor degree from Furman College. He held both master's and doctorate degrees from the school of sacred music of Union Theological Seminary.

Before coming to the Manhattan church in 1937, Dr. Giles was organist at the Plymouth-Piedmont Congregational Church, Worcester, Mass.

In 1947 Dr. Giles was ordained into the Presbyterian ministry after having received a theology degree from Union Seminary. He believed so strongly in a close tie between music and the church that he had attended the seminary to learn more about his religion.

Hugh Giles appeared as a recitalist in this country, Europe, South America and Canada, for some years under the Lilian Murtagh banner. Surviving are two sisters.

ROCHESTER ORGANIST DIES AT 77; WAS REGER STUDENT

Philip G. Kreckel, for 55 years organist and choirmaster of St. Boniface R.C. Church, Rochester, N.Y., died Nov. 9 at the age of 77. A native of Rochester, he succeeded his father as organist of the church. He has written considerable music for the Catholic service.

At 16 he was sent to Munich, Germany for four years of study at the Royal Conservatory where his teachers were Max Reger and Ludwig Thuille in theory and composition and Joseph Renner in organ. He also studied chant with the Benedictines at Beuron.

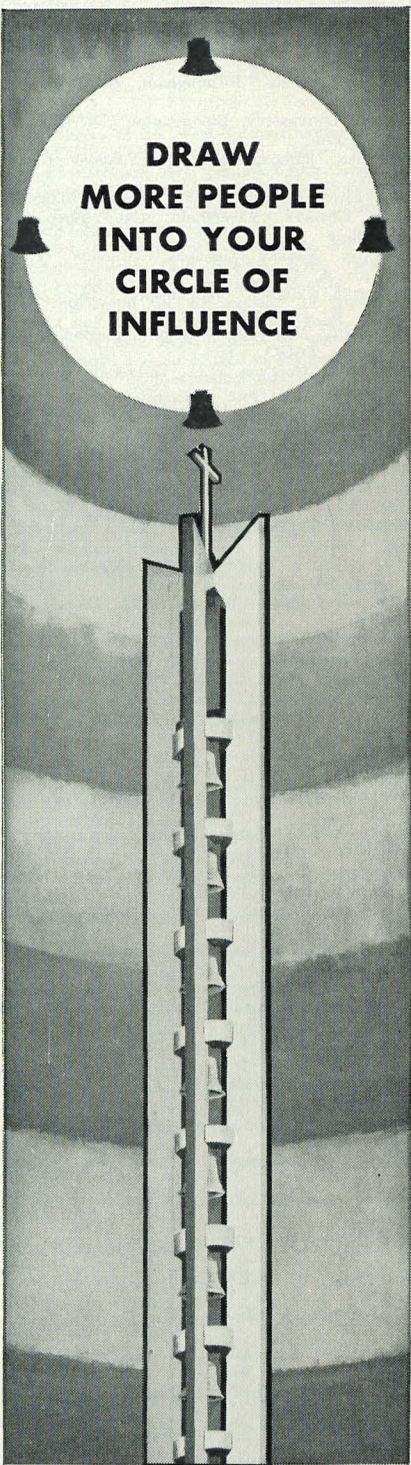

Mrs. Kreckel, two sons, a sister and a brother survive. His priest son, Robert, celebrated the solemn requiem mass. A delegation from the Rochester AGO Chapter was in attendance.

Vernon D. Christman died at Englewood, N. J. Sept. 3, 1963 of injuries suffered in an automobile accident two days earlier. Since 1959 he has been minister of music of the Presbyterian Church of Teaneck, N. J. and choir director of Temple Emeth at Englewood.

Between his receipt of the MMus degree, magna cum laude, from Syracuse University in 1952 and his move to New Jersey in 1959, Mr. Christman had served Kenmore Methodist Church, Buffalo, N. Y. where he was sub-dean of the Buffalo AGO Chapter.

His parents and a brother survive him.

GETHSEMANE

by David H. Williams

A Cantata for Lent or Holy Week for Chorus of Mixed Voices and Reader with Text from the Scriptures.

This short cantata is written in the typical style of this well-known composer. This is to say that it will be immensely popular with both performers and congregations. The vocal parts are quite easy, there is a short tenor (or soprano) solo and the organ accompaniment is idiomatic and colorful.

The mood throughout is suitably quiet and somber. Altogether a most effective work suitable for any Lenten or Holy Week service.

Performance Time 35 min.

BOY CHOIRS

Stephen E. Young, AAGO, has been appointed to the faculty of Meredith College, Raleigh, N. C. In addition to directing the church music program, he has classes in theory, counterpoint, and music history.

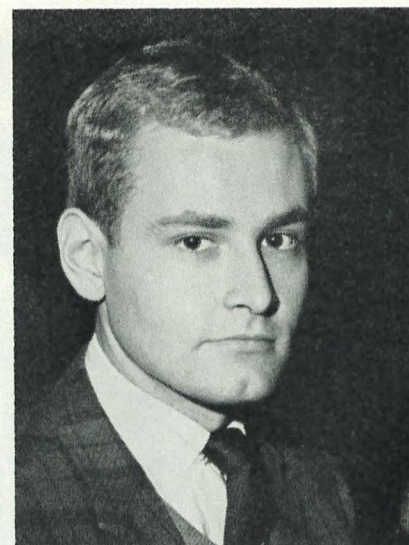

Mr. Young was granted his BA from Stanford University and MSM from Union Seminary. He taught last year at Southeastern Baptist Seminary (replacing a faculty member on leave) and shared the music duties at the Wake Forest Baptist Church (Wake Forest, N. C.). He is married and has one child.

NASM HOLDS 39TH MEETING —
275 SCHOOLS REPRESENTED

The 39th annual meeting of the National Association of Schools of Music (NASM), held Nov. 29 and 30 at the Palmer House in Chicago, drew a record attendance of delegates representing 275 conservatories, colleges and universities throughout the United States. Eight schools were admitted to associate membership and five were promoted from associate to full membership.

Officers for the ensuing year are: president, C. B. Hunt, Jr., George Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn.; first vice-president, Duane Branigan, University of Illinois, Urbana; second vice-president, LaVahn Maesch, Lawrence College, Appleton, Wis.; secretary, Thomas Williams, Knox College, Galesburg, Ill.; treasurer, Carl M. Neumeyer, Illinois Wesleyan U., Bloomington.

Next year's meeting will be held at the Statler Hilton Hotel in St. Louis, Mo.

Gordon Bush has been appointed organist and choirmaster of the Mariners Chapel at the United States Merchant Marine Academy, Kings Point, N. Y. A resident of Clawson, Mich., he has studied with Dr. Alexander McCurdy and Dr. George Markey at the Westminster Choir College in Princeton, N. J., and is now continuing his studies under Dr. Markey at the Guilman Organ School, New York City.

Included in Mr. Bush's responsibilities at the new $700,000 memorial chapel are musical vesper services the second and fourth Sundays of each month. The 50-voice Cadet Chapel Choir which rehearses twice a week sings at all Protestant Chapel services, and also gives concerts throughout the year in surrounding churches.

TWO APPOINTED TO CHURCH
MUSIC STAFF IN N.Y. TOWN

David J. Askin has become assistant minister of Christian education and music at the First Presbyterian Church, Horseheads, N.Y. He comes from the La Habra, Cal. Methodist Church. He has the MA degree in sacred music from the San Francisco Theological Seminary, San Anselmo, Cal. He began his new duties Nov. 15.

Judy Gardner has been appointed organist. Mrs. Gardner has served for three years as organist at the Wilmington, Mass. Methodist Church, in the Boston area.

ERVIN DUNHAM gave a lecture recital Oct. 14 on the Schubler chorales at the First Congregational Church, Tucson, as a requirement for the doctoral at the University of Arizona.

JAMES A. THOMAS

First Presbyterian Church

La Grange, Ill.

Bob Whitley has become organist-choir-master at the Fox Chapel Community Episcopal Church in Fox Chapel, residential suburb of Pittsburgh, Pa. The church property acquired in 1946 consists of 17 acres. The church proper was added as a wing of an already existing private estate. The original Aeolian-Skinner residence organ was replaced in December 1962 with a three-manual Schantz. The parish operates a Country Day school and directs a Town Hall program as part of its service to the Pittsburgh community, with lectures by national and international personages on a wide range of subjects for more than 700 subscribers. Its parishioners are prominent in Symphony affairs and on Civic Light Opera and Oratorio Society boards.

Mr. Whitley was the 1950 winner of the AGO national competition in organ playing and has since established a reputation as a player, church musician and choir trainer. A student of Mildred Andrews at the University of Oklahoma, he attended the Royal School of Church Music, Canterbury, England on a Fulbright grant. In England he also studied organ with Dr. Harold Darke at the Royal College of Music in London, earning an Associateship diploma. He played recitals in Canterbury Cathedral, Dover Town Hall and numerous boroughs of Great Britain.

While at St. Luke's, San Francisco, from which he resigned after 10 years of service, Mr. Whitley established a concert series of variety and scope. In the last three years there were 26 concerts ranging from program for solo voice, solo organ recital, for organ and bass and organ and strings, for two and three harpsichords and major choral literature with organ and orchestra. With the St. Luke's choir he recorded last May volume 320 of Aeolian-Skinner's King of Instruments series of stereo recordings.

Vancouver

The Nov. 16 meeting of the Vancouver Centre took place in St. Andrew's Wesley United Church. The first hour was taken up with the finals of the first annual Vancouver Centre organ scholarship competition for young organists. Adjudicators were Lawrence Cludray, FRCO, ARCM, and Donald King, ACCO. The winner was Charles Russ. Other young organists who contributed to the program, though not in the competition, were Cathy Shaw and Darryl Downton. The second part of the meeting was a showing of the CBC film "... and places where they sing" being a visit with the late Leonard Wilson. Refreshments were served and Chairman G. Herald Keffer thanked guests and members for their participation in the meeting and the organ competition.

The Oct. 26 meeting took place in the lounge of the West Point Grey Baptist Church, Vancouver. The main item of the meeting was an informal, illustrated talk on Music and Liturgy by Canon T. D. Somerville, Anglican Theological College, Vancouver. Ernie Williams gave a vote of thanks to the guest speaker. Chairman Keffer held an informal general business meeting, after which refreshments were served.

GORDON W. ATKINSON

Victoria

The Victoria Centre held its annual student organists and junior choirs recital Nov. 16 in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Young organists performing were Peter Bishop, Frances Coalston, Carol Penner and Geoffrey Thornburn. Junior choirs from St. Andrew's and St. David's by the Sea and boys from Christ Church Cathedral and the Church of St. Mary the Virgin contributed to the choral part of the program.

Galt

A festal evensong at Trinity Church, Galt, Ont. served to observe St. Cecilia's Day and RCCO Sunday Nov. 24. Canadian composers represented included, George Coutts, Godfrey Ridout, Healey Willan, Edward Elliott, S. Drummond Wolfe, E. G. Monk, Cyril Hampshire, Albert Kennedy and Sir Ernest MacMillan. The choirs of the host church directed by Kenneth Clarke and of the Knox Presbyterian Church, Burlington directed by James Martindale, took part. A collection was taken for the Building Fund.

The 1964 RCCO annual convention Aug. 24-27 will make its headquarters at United College, Winnipeg, Man., photographed above at a very different season of the year from that scheduled for the meeting. On the left is new Graham Hall and Riddell Hall, where out-of-town delegates will be lodged, and in the background the dining hall, always a favorite spot of conventioners. Plans and preparations are well underway as the New Year opens; Winnipeg's first RCCO convention will certainly be a successful one.

Edmonton

The Nov. 25 meeting of the Edmonton Centre was held in St. Faith's Anglican Church. The choir, under the direction of A. S. Rumbelow, gave a demonstration of the Anglican service. The liturgy was defined by Mr. Rumbelow as a corporate offering and could be demonstrated by ritual, symbols, sacraments and sacrifice. The placing of choirs was explained. Old Psalters and Hymn books were on display and a question period led into a lively discussion. Coffee was served by the choir.

Saskatoon

The Saskatoon Centre met Oct. 20 at St. Paul's Lutheran Church. John Whelan and David Appelt gave talks on ornamentation and the usage of Bach's Chorale Preludes. Refreshments and fellowship were held at Mr. Appelt's home.

The centre sponsored a reception Oct. 31 for Fernando Germani who was in Saskatoon for a recital at the Third Avenue United Church. About 35 attended the reception of Dr. H. D. Hart's home.

At the Nov. 24 meeting Dr. Hart showed the group a new pipe organ he just recently finished building at St. Timothy's Anglican Church.

WALTER HOPE

Sarnia

A hymn festival sponsored by the Sarnia Centre was held Nov. 19 at the Central United Church. The combined senior choirs of a number of district churches were conducted by H. M. Sperling; organ accompaniment was by M. S. Keffer who organized the event. Two choral groups also participated; the Soli Deo Gloria Choir under the direction of J. D. Murray, and a new male quartet directed by John Janssens. A silver collection was taken to defray expenses.

St. John

A panel discussion between organists, choir directors and ministers took place at the Nov. 2 meeting of the St. John Centre at Central Baptist Church, St. John, N. B. Taking part were the Ven. Archdeacon C. LeR. Mooers, the Rev. David L. Kennedy, the Rev. B. David Hostetter, the Rev. Donald McIntosh, Mrs. Harold Ellis, Shirley Atkins, Douglas Major and John Grew. Topic of the panel was the relationship between worship and music in the church. William J. Seely was moderator. The business meeting was presided over by the chairman, Mr. Seely. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Charles I. Hillins, Mrs. George Ross, Mrs. Harold Ellis and Mrs. A. J. Clark.

Montreal

A successful hymn festival service was held under the auspices of the Montreal Centre Nov. 26 in the Church of St. Andrew and St. Paul. About 350 were present to sing hymns and listen to six choirs placed in the four corners of the nave and in the chancel and rear gallery. The Rev. Dr. R. J. Berlis conducted the service and the following choirs with their choirmasters took part: St. James the Apostle, Anglican, Ted McLearn; St. Matthews Anglican, Clifford Johnston; First Baptist Church, Victor McCorry; Greenfield Paul United, Neil Beauchamp; St. Lambert United, Eric Adams; St. Andrew and St. Paul Presbyterian, Phillips Motley. The prelude, offertory and postlude were played by Norman Hurrell, Edward Brown and Georges Lindsay. Refreshments were served in the church hall.

Toronto

Autumn weather enhanced the visit of the Buffalo AGO Chapter Oct. 19 to be guests of the Toronto Centre at St. Michael's Cathedral. Victor Togni demonstrated the three-manual Warren tracker-action organ recently renovated by Kney and Bright. The Ladies' Auxiliary served tea after a demonstration-recital by Paul Murray on the four-manual Casavant at Metropolitan United Church. In St. Simon's Anglican Church, Choral Evensong by the men and boys of the choir, directed by Eric Lewis, preceded a recital by John McIntosh on the new three-manual Casavant. Dinner in St. Simon's parish hall concluded another "hands across the border" meeting.

Calgary

Continuing the practical approach of last month, the Calgary Centre Nov. 17 examined further the problems of the church organist faced with a small instrument. At St. Gabriel's Church Joan Bell, using the electronic spinet, and Arthur Ward, using a reed organ without pedals, played with explanations a recital exemplifying good music for these limited instruments and provided each member with an extensive list of pieces that can be effectively played on such instruments; a list carefully prepared indicating editions, degree of difficulty, general character and suitability for various occasions. A display of the music catalogues completed this project.

The centre sponsored Fernando Germani in recital Nov. 4 at Knox United Church.

Hamilton

The Oct. 19 meeting of the Hamilton Centre took place in the chancel of Christ's Church Cathedral. National President George Veary, ARCO, ARCM, organist of the cathedral, was heard in a demonstration-lecture on the performance, interpretation and registration of the chorale preludes of J. S. Bach. This gave members a chance to hear the new tonal changes made recently to the organ. Following a question period the group was served refreshments by the social committee in the parish hall.

A special presentation of liturgical music at St. Patrick's Church, Hamilton, Nov. 25 was opened with words of welcome from Msgr. J. F. Hinchey and the playing of Bach's Fugue in B minor by Dennis J. Driscoll. With a small but highly trained choir of men and boys under the direction of Geoffrey G. Steel, carefully chosen examples of the art of plainsong were given. A wide range of composers and settings was covered in the music of Peeters, Hassler, Victoria and Byrd. Comprehensive notes were provided. Many remained to congratulate Messrs. Driscoll and Steel on their work and to enjoy a social time in the school auditorium.

Brantford

An organ and vocal recital was given Oct. 20 for the Brantford Centre in St. Paul's United Church, Paris, Ont., by Donald Wakeley, organist, and William Leighfield, tenor. Following the recital a business meeting was conducted by chairman Norman Baldwin when future programs were planned.

Festival choral evensong was celebrated at Grace Anglican Church Nov. 24 commemorating RCCO week. Archdeacon F. C. McRitchie conducted the service and the organist, George Fox, ARCO, led the choir in the singing of the introit, We have seen His Star, Titcomb, the anthems Christ Is our Cornerstone, Fox, Brother James' Air, sung by the youth singers, and the motet, Very Bread, Good Shepherd, Willan. The service concluded with Toccata and Fugue in D minor, Bach.

London

More than 100 singers were in the choir drawn from churches in the area for the festival of hymns arranged by the London Centre at the Metropolitan United Church Nov. 24, the purpose being to bring to public attention RCCO Sunday and the work of the College. Individual choirs sang hymns, plainchant, Lutheran Chorales, through the Wesleys to the present day. The College of Music brass ensemble took part, and to conclude, Old 100th by Vaughan Williams was sung, conducted by Alex Clark with Wayne Belton at the organ. John McIntosh was the commentator.

Winnipeg

Members of the Winnipeg Centre attended the dedication recital Dec. 2 by Robert Noehren on the new Beckerath organ in the First Presbyterian Church. The centre joined with the music committee of the church in sponsoring the recital. A capacity audience attended and included Rudolf von Beckerath the builder; two organ craftsmen, Helmut Kleeman and Gerhard Hradetzky who did the installation work; and a special honored guest, Sir Ernest MacMillan of Toronto.

The entire organ was prefabricated in Hamburg and shipped to Winnipeg by sea and rail. It is the first large modern mechanical action pipe organ in Western Canada. Following the recital members had the opportunity to see the organ at closer range and have it explained by Conrad Grimes, organist and choir director of the church.

ALLEN TONE GUARANTEED SUPERIOR

CHURCHES AND INSTITUTIONS: SELECT AN ALLEN AND KNOW!

At Allen, we believe that guesswork and chance-taking have no place in the selection of a major investment such as an organ. This is especially true in churches or institutions, where an important purchase is also an important trust.

At Allen, we know that all electronic organs are not alike in tone. We believe (and we have been told) that the tone of our electronic organs is the finest. We support that judgment with this special Silver Anniversary guarantee:

- With the purchase of an Allen, we guarantee the tone of the Allen to be superior to that of any comparable electric or electronic model within one year of its purchase. To prove this superiority (if the issue arises), the tone will be adjudged in a side-by-side demonstration by a substantial congregational vote with a procedure satisfactory to all.

- If this vote decides the Allen is not tonally superior to a competitive model, Allen Organ Company will adjust the organ to make it superior, replace it with another Allen, or refund the purchase price.
- This offer applies to any church or institutional Allen Organ purchased new during our Silver Anniversary celebration, Sept. 1, 1963, through Sept. 1, 1964. This guarantee will be in effect for one year after the day of purchase.

This is our guarantee—and your assurance. You can select an Allen Organ with complete confidence, knowing you select the finest.

DUNN TO CONDUCT TWO-DAY SEMINAR AT D.C. CATHEDRAL

Thomas Dunn will lead a two-day seminar on church music Feb. 2 and 3 at the College of Church Musicians, Washington, D.C., Cathedral. The seminar will feature four lectures, three on performance of: the Bach Passions; the Bach Mass in B minor; Handel's Messiah. The fourth will deal with instrumental music in the church. All will be concerned with the grouping of instruments with chorus and with organ.

Cost of the two-day seminar is $15. Write: College of Church Musicians, Mount St. Alban, Washington D.C. 20016.

HOLD 30TH BACH FESTIVAL AT LOS ANGELES CHURCH

The 30th annual Los Angeles Bach festival Nov. 15, 16, 23 and 24 at the First Congregational Church featured the church's cathedral choir under the direction of Dr. H. Vincent Mitzelfelt, the Mitzelfelt Chorale, Alice Ehlers, harpsichordist, the Los Angeles Brass Society conducted by Lester Remsen, the Cathedral octet and the Bach Festival orchestra.

Lloyd Holzgraf played the Concerto in A minor and the Toccata and Fugue in D minor at the opening program. Three brass choirs were positioned in antiphonal galleries, with the 58-rank E. M. Skinner organ speaking from the chancel.

More than 700 children from the city schools participated in one program. The Magnificat and the first half of the Christmas Oratorio were heard. H. Vincent Mitzelfelt, M. D. was festival director.

Donald Ulm has been appointed organist and choirmaster of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Epiphany, Bronx, N. Y. He was formerly organist of Grace Lutheran Church, Los Angeles, Calif. He is a native of Alexandria, Minn., and has studied organ with Gerald Bales at the MacPhail College of Music in Minneapolis. He is presently a student at the Guilman Organ School in New York City, where he is studying with Dr. George Markey.

Jerome P. Kruhaj has been appointed organist and choirmaster of the Assumption Catholic Church, East Chicago, Ind. He was previously affiliated with the Discalced Carmelite Fathers of Little Rock, Ark. and San Antonio, Tex. In 1962-63 he was organist for the National Shrine of St. Therese, San Antonio. In Little Rock he studied with the Rev. Pascal Pierini, O.C.D. He has also studied at Roosevelt University.

DELAWARE ORGAN TO GO INTO BRONX CHURCH

COMPLETION SCHEDULED FOR 1965

Three-Manual of 43 Ranks in Functional Display—Steve Empson, Music Director, Provides Design

The Church of St. Raymond, Bronx, New York, has contracted with the Delaware Organ Company for a new three-manual organ. The instrument, comprising 43 ranks, will be placed in a functional display around the rose window in the rear gallery, with the great, positive and pedal exposed. This organ, the second Delaware installation in St. Raymond Church, is scheduled for completion in late 1965.

The organ was designed by Steve Empson, director of music at the church. It is one of several instruments planned with the assistance of the Very Rev. Msgr. Richard B. Curtin, director of church music in the Archdiocese of New York.

Joseph L. Leonard was honored Dec. 9 by members of Temple Beth Am, Los Angeles, Cal., in recognition of his 10 years as Temple organist. The Guild of Temple Organists, which Mr. Leonard helped to found in 1952 joined the congregation and choir in saluting the sightless musician.

A native of Mannheim, Germany, Mr. Leonard lost his vision at the age of 5 but he became an honors graduate of the Stern Conservatory, Berlin, and served as organist for large synagogues in Mannheim and Berlin and as soloist with important German orchestras. In Los Angeles he has taught at the Pasadena Institute for Fine Arts, played on a regular radio program for the Blind Artists Guild, and was for 10 years organist and choir director at Fairfax Temple before he went to Temple Beth Am in 1953.

EDITORIALS

The opinions, ideas and suggestions on the editorial page are the responsibility of the editors of this publication and do not necessarily reflect official policies or points of view of the elected officers of either the American Guild of Organists or the Royal Canadian College of Organists and should not be construed as such.

In Memoriam

By far the most widely sung choral work in the month of November was the Brahms German Requiem, one of the more intimate expressions of grief and loss in the literature of great music. Elsewhere we have listed a few of the many performances reported to us. It seems a touching coincidence that so many performances of this particular work had been prepared for performance at the very time of our great national time of mourning.

Likewise coincidentally, the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and the Symphony Chorus had scheduled a performance of the Mozart Requiem. The week before the scheduled performances, its famed former conductor Fritz Reiner died and the concert was rescheduled as a memorial for him. Then the tragedy of our President made the memorial concert of double significance. The remarkable fact of the coincidental schedule, as in the many Brahms performances set for similar dates, can hardly fail to move us all.

The power of great music to comfort and unite was a matter of comment in most radio and television columns. All the great requiems were broadcast again and again, and always with telling effect. Organ recitals and choral services were appropriately turned into memorials as people sought solace and reassurance in music and faith.

Surely we will never need to experience such a national tragedy again. But let us not forget the mighty power of music, especially from the pealing organ and a chorus of human voices, to sustain us all in sorrow and loss.

Winter Wondering

Winter is upon us, most of us, again; a time of special problems for almost everyone. We hope it does not strike as severely as it did in many parts of both North America and Europe last season.

Organs, like other mechanical, electrical and human creatures, don't many of them cotton to extreme cold weather and are likely to perform the most perverse and embarrassing antics, as many organists can testify. Have you ever tried to get hold of a service man the first zero Sunday of the winter?

As we have remarked before, cold churches give a passable, if rather lame, excuse for not enough practice, for failure to include one's best repertory in one's programs, for not giving that long overdue recital. For the purpose of providing alibis, winter almost matches hot weather, vacation time, etc.

And one must really do some heart-warming and some circulation rousing if one is to keep choir members turning out faithfully when the snowdrifts begin to deepen.

Yes, winter is a difficult time for us all. We wonder what this one will bring to the readers and the staff of THE DIAPASON.

Das alte Jahr vergangen ist

Since high school days we have been reading essays on the subject of growing old — from Cicero's De Senectate through Life Begins at 40 to a Seth Bingham article, Are We Still Growing? which our readers will be enjoying.

Newspapers and magazines have been full of geriatric matters, the retirement problem has been the subject of innumerable TV and in-person panels, and the growing-old puzzle has spurred advertising agencies to some of their rarer flights of fancy.

With Dr. Bingham himself, with our beloved S. Lewis Elmer and the hardly believable Clarence Dickinson as constant reminders of old age at its best, the AGO has its share of distinguished as well as average oldsters. Readers will note Dr. Harold Darke's 75th birthday recital at London's Royal Festival Hall.

Since the handing down of the torch of THE DIAPASON to somewhat younger, if hardly stronger, hands, this journal of yours has welcomed the opportunity to put more emphasis on youth and the future and has urged some of the same change of direction and adjustment to the times upon our national organization. We are confident of the long-range wisdom of this but let's keep taking a good look, too, at our older members.

We had a pleasing letter recently from a woman, aged 69, who is registrar of a rather young AGO chapter within a long day's drive of the office of THE DIAPASON. With her letter she sent a program for our recital pages. As she says, her "numbers are not in the advanced category but * * * represent many hours of careful preparation."

What's so unusual about that, you ask? The writer has retired from 34 years of public school teaching and has only recently begun her study of the organ. That somehow reminds of that more joyful other Orgelbüchlein New Year's chorale, In dir ist Freude!

Conventionitis

The excitement mounts for the national convention to be held in Philadelphia next June. The program as it unfolds seems more and more tightly packed with the kind of events a Guild member can hardly afford to miss.

The convention booklet or brochure will be mailed out soon (see Guild page story!) and the much discussed pipe organ door prize will help convince many of the wisdom of early registration.

Practice of the kind that makes perfect, as the adage puts it, must be going on in many an organ loft as the improvisation contest begins to have an impact on thinking.

Some savings banks must surely be opening special convention trip accounts as pennies, nickels, dimes and dollars pile up to help defray expenses. An increasing number of churches, we hear, are planning to finance their organists' attendance, certainly a forward-looking investment. (It won't hurt to hint!) One choir we heard of made a Christmas gift toward its director's convention expenses.

We suggest not only that no one miss the convention but that everyone who possibly can, take his vacation the week before and the week after in order to rest up to be able to stand the gaff and then to recuperate from it. We remember the pace of Detroit and Los Angeles; it called for all possible vitamin fortification even for that hardy breed which peoples AGO conventions.

A Month for Requiems

Within the tragic month which preceded the completion of this issue, many of the great requiems were heard, but apparently none was heard so often as the beloved Brahms German Requiem. Among the dozens of programs of this work received in November and early December were: Church of the Ascension, New York City; First Baptist, Memphis, Tenn.; Christ Church Cathedral and First Congregational choirs at the latter church, Eau Claire, Wis.; First Presbyterian, Amarillo, Tex.

Other approaches to the nation's sorrow were the Bach God's Time Is Best at Second Baptist, Lubbock, Tex. and First Lutheran, Sioux Falls, S. D.; Schütz German Requiem, Christ Church, Nashville, Tenn.; Sowerby's Put Off the Garment of Thy Mourning at a choir festival at All Saints, Fort Worth, Tex.; Bach's God the Lord Is Sun and Shield sung by Wayne U Singers at the Community Arts Auditorium, Detroit. Innumerable recitals and choir programs were dedicated to the memory of the late president.

Sacred Songs

We are sorry some sacred songs for the Christmas season reached us too late for 1963 consideration.

There is a cycle for medium voice by John La Montaine, Songs of the Nativity (H. W. Gray) which will have many interesting uses. There is nothing trite in their simplicity and directness.

And Austin Lovelace's Our Lady Sat within Her Bower (J. Fischer) has charm and flavor.

Singers who must sing many church solos might find use for a collection, Church Soloists Favorites, edited for R. D. Row and Carl Fischer by Carl Frederickson. Much of the material is threadbare, time-tried warhorses; but not a great deal of it is duplicated in other collections.

Two new songs from the same publishers (Row — Carl Fischer) are Resurrection Garden by Clement W. Barker, for Easter, and Behold, God Is My Salvation by Allanson G. Y. Brown. Both are in conventional idioms; and, like the collection above, both come for high and low voice. — FC

Five Recitals

The too busy pre-Advent weeks in the Chicago area brought their usual too many organ recitals. Not many of us could possibly have attended even most of them; we attempted as many as we could.

One of the earliest was the Oct. 11 recital of Arno Schönstedt at Grace Lutheran Church, River Forest, following hard on the heels of his program at Valparaiso University. Mr. Schönstedt, like many a European organist when confronted with unfamiliar American organs, failed to live up to what his records had led us to hope for. The program seemed long, lacking in lift and persuasion. The turnout was encouraging, the reaction lukewarm.

The Chicago Chapter's first series recital was played by Ray Ferguson Nov. 12. Mr. Ferguson's style showed more flexibility and freedom than when we heard him some five seasons ago and his command of the instrument was even more nearly flawless; in all, a very marked growth. A good but not capacity crowd was appreciative.

Charles Huddleston Heaton, St. Louis, played Nov. 17 at the First Methodist Church, Evanston. An embarrassingly small assemblage heard some vigorous and individual playing including the Virgil Thomson Pange Lingua, heard first at the opening of the Lincoln Center organ.

Virgil Fox opened the new Möller at Ebenezer Lutheran Church Nov. 18, with his program, his playing, his show-

Those Were the Days

Fifty years ago the January, 1914 issue contained these matters of interest —
Edwin Arthur Kraft was engaged as city organist of Atlanta, Ga.

The echo division of the new three-manual Hillgreen-Lane organ in the First Baptist Church, Canton, Ohio, was installed under the floor; Richard Keys Biggs played the opening recital Nov. 25.

The National Association of Organists (NAO) opened a registration bureau for members with a view to securing positions.

The sum of $900, raised in the USA, was forwarded to the committee in Paris planning a monument to Alexandre Guilmant.

The Recent Revolution in Organ Building by George Laing Miller, FRCO, was advertised for sale.

At a meeting of the Ontario AGO Chapter in St. James Square Presbyterian Church, Toronto, Healey Willan spoke on Modern Music and its Relation to the Church Service; he followed this with a short recital of: Meditation, Homer Bartlett; By the Waters of Babylon, Karg-Elert; Toccata, Symphony 5, Widor, and his own Prelude and Fugue in C minor, Scherzo and Epilogue and an improvisation on a given theme.

Twenty-five years ago these events made news in the January, 1939 issue —

Frank L. Sealey, a founder of the AGO and its warden from 1922 to 1932 died in New York City at the age of 80.

Announcement was made of the new Aeolian-Skinner for St. Paul's Chapel, Columbia University.

Edward Arthur Bishop, organist for more than 50 years of the Quebec Cathedral, died in his 90th year.

Ten years ago the following occurrences were brought to the attention of readers of the issue of January 1954 —

Alexander Russell, organist at the Wanamaker stores for 42 years and composer of widely played organ music died Nov. 24 at the age of 73.

Emma J. H. Lupton completed 60 years at the same console at the Madison Street Methodist Church, Clarks-ville, Tenn.

Dr. Edgar Stanley Roper, who originated the idea which grew into the ICO in London in 1957, died in London. He had sung as a boy soprano at Queen Victoria's Golden Jubilee, had served as choirmaster to King George V, and was organist at Westminster Abbey for the Coronation of George VI.

Caspar Koch retired from North Side Carnegie Hall after 50 years of service within which he had played 2,000 recitals.

manship and the audience's enthusiastic reaction predictable. Despite some welcome pruning of his introductory speeches, the recital had reached only intermission time when we left after an hour and a half. We thus missed the organ's rebellion within the hymn singing, which left the large audience at loose ends.

Heinz Wunderlich proved the most stimulating new foreign player we have given a first hearing in some time. His recital for the North Shore Chapter Nov. 26 at Evanston's First Presbyterian Church fully bore out the impression his records had promised. His virile, vital, rhythmic playing made a long, serious program seem short and easy to fathom.

Most of these programs appear or have appeared in the recital section.—FC

WILBUR HELD EVENT PRELUDE TO KALAMAZOO BACH FESTIVAL

As a preliminary to the 19th annual Bach festival sponsored by Kalamazoo College, the festival council has arranged an afternoon and evening program for Jan. 26. Wilbur Held, Ohio State University, will conduct a workshop in which he will lecture, play and conduct a discussion of the Orgelbüchlein. With components of the festival chorus he will offer an evening program. The festival itself will be staged at Stetson chapel, March 6, 7 and 8 with Russell F. Hammar as conductor.

SHAWNEE PRESS, INC. has purchased all the capital stock of Educational Music Bureau, Inc., Chicago, 50-year-old distributor of music materials for teaching and performance; it will continue its present location at 434 South Wabash Ave.

Letters to the Editor

Authenticity Pitfalls!

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 10, 1963 —
To the Editor:

Robert Rayfield's article in the November issue must have been written with tongue in cheek. He asks why we unhesitatingly change the registration of a Franck organ piece when to change the orchestration of his Symphony in D would be unthinkable. The obvious answer is because few of us have a similar organ to that which Franck had at his disposal. But should that prevent us from playing Franck?

Let us once and for all nail this phobia for authenticity and put it where it belongs. Except for a few isolated instances, an organ is for the purpose of the accompaniment of Divine Service. If anyone doubts this elementary but too often forgotten fact, let him ask himself if the church would grant such expenditure for an organ, large or small, if it were not so. Its function is also that of playing voluntaries, and in this field we can include as many schools of organ literature as the organ, and organist, are capable of playing. Some organs do contain an oboe ("so that you, too, can play Franck") but while Franck does specify the "hautbois", it will not prevent my playing the Prelude, Fugue and Variation just because my organ does not contain this morsel.

One only too often sees the saddest results of organs designed primarily for the "authentic" rendition of Bach and pre-Bach, but invariably paid for by others who not only want but need something entirely different. * * *

Every organ, except the largest, is a compromise. We must try to be as authentic as reasonable (not necessarily as possible) in registration; one must compromise too. To be slavish is also sometimes to be childish. To a purist, a diapason chorus should be "free" of flutes, but I have played organs where the primary chorus has been improved by an addition of the flutes. * * *

The organ is, or should be, an expressive instrument. * * * I feel that Bach himself would have welcomed our modern swell divisions. But even in our highest regard for Bach, must we forget Rheinberger, Mendelssohn, Stanford and Parry? Perhaps there were not as "precise" as Franck in their registration demands, but without delving into historical records and research as Mr. Rayfield suggests, I know on my organ what Gt. MF or Ch. Solo means: use discretion and common sense.

Yours faithfully

DONALD KING

Silence Is Golden!

Tallahassee, Fla., Dec. 6, 1963 —
To the Editor:

To continue the improvisation jag we've been on — First be it understood that I thoroughly agree that improvisation has all the possibilities of a great art form. Second let it be noted that, rightly or wrongly, I feel it is one of the things I do best, with a good deal of ease and freedom. But like all potentially noble activities I do feel that when improvisation is used it must be based upon sound reasons for use at the particular time and in the particular way. The following are some of the principles which I strive to adhere to:

I never under any circumstances manufacture little bridges to slosh one musical item into another. Any piece of music that is worthwhile enough to play, especially in church, has the right to be started and ended exactly as the composer wrote it, and followed by a moment of silence so that the effect may solidify. Silence in church is never under any circumstances awkward. Silence is the basic attitude of religious worship from the beginning of time. The one hour on Sunday is the only time many of us ever get simply to sit and think and meditate without the constant barrage of sonic confusion emitted by our culture. No noses to wipe, no spills to wipe up, no buttons to sew on immediately, no phone ringing; just wonderful, silent space in which to sit and take hold of oneself! As an organist I try to see that there is as much of this precious commodity as possible.

Another agreement I have with myself is always to improvise a whole musical idea at least once during the service. This is usually the postlude, because I can't see learning some grand thing only to cover exit noises. A lot of the time I let the choir choose a hymn tune or musical form at rehearsal for my postlude. I run it over in my mind until Sunday, listening to various possibilities and letting the idea germinate in my thinking. When the time comes, I have a fair idea of the whole form and the registration I want to use, although fairly often when I get into it, the thing obstinately takes hold of me and off we go in an unplanned direction. Also the postlude has the advantage of being relatively untimed so one has freedom from worry about ending at a precise moment. Improvisation is a tremendously interesting adventure in rational discourse, and I honestly believe it is misused when it is seen as a sort of sticky mess that glues the service together.

Why Attend Organ Recitals?

Chicago, Dec. 7, 1963 —

To the Editor:

Again organ recitals are in full swing here, there, and everywhere. How are they attended?

Dedicatory recitals usually draw a good crowd or even an overflow. Big name artists as a rule also attract many music lovers and organ fans. Other recitalists, good, bad, or indifferent also play to audiences varying in size and intellect.

How well do organists attend recitals of fellow organists? A writer in THE DIAPASON for May 1960, noted that "organists make up the smallest part of an organ recital audience." Of course, why not? Organists are fewer in number than lay people interested in organ music. That's not the point, however. The fact seems to be that organists as a lot are all too often conspicuous by their absence at recitals they ought to attend.

Lloyd D. Liese in The Organist and the Organ Recital (Lutheran Education, October 1960) based his article on these reasons for attending organ recitals:

- 1 To hear a diversity of organ literature
- 2 To motivate an examination of one's own library of organ music
- 3 To hear various readings of great music
- 4 To hear others play
- 5 To support and encourage organ recitalists
- 6 To be edified
- 7 To improve one's own service as an organist

Why go to organ recitals? Obviously they familiarize us with many and diversified organ compositions, organs, and interpretations. Following selections with a score in hand helps us to visualize what the ear hears. Readings preparatory to a recital, as well as pertinent program notes, also help us to understand and enjoy the music presented. Above all, well-planned and well-played organ recitals enrich our lives and inspire us to play well.

How can we ever repay the men and women organ recitalists who spend time, effort and themselves to play recitals for us? We can and we should reward them as much as is reasonably possible with our presence at their recitals in our cities and suburbs. We ought to express our appreciation in specific terms rather than in generalities. Yes, it might be thoughtful of us to address a letter of fair and friendly comment to the recitalists.

What if we have heard a certain recitalist? Hear him or her again. He or she might have something quite different to say this time than the last time. At another organ a recitalist might be a revelation. Hearing other musical performers (pianists, violinists, vocalists, choirs, orchestras) once does not (or should not) prevent us from hearing them again and again.

If we are to interest the average music lover in organ recitals, we organists must set a good example ourselves. We must ourselves attend organ recitals as diligently as possible. Student organists, young artist recitalists, and veteran organists on the decline also need our encouragement.

If you have been an organist any length of time, you know just about all the reasons, sound or flimsy, why organists at various times fail to attend organ recitals.

If you are a regular recital-goer, you know that attending many organ recitals has great values for you: education, edification, enrichment — all of them in a musical, cultural and spiritual sense one way or another. You will also learn how to play or how not to play, what to play and what not to play. Either way, you can't lose by attending organ recitals as often as possible.

HERBERT D. BRUENING, LL.D.

GREETINGS AND BEST WISHES FOR THE NEW YEAR

The high artistry of America's organists has challenged us to custom-make organs worthy of the greatest talent. We sincerely appreciate your evident confidence in Möller craftsmanship during 1963

A totally new concept in organ completeness that adds up to an exciting new experience for you!

THE 720 CONN ARTIST

The new Conn Artist is the most-complete self-contained organ on the market today and opens to you exciting new dimensions in tonality, playing range, versatility.

Distinctive Diapason

Has a new fullness and depth made possible by Conn's exclusive Transistor Keyer which ingeniously controls starting and gradual stopping of the various organ tones. Voices have amazing new contrast, realism.

Tonal Completeness

Solo voices of the upper keyboard provide a delightful "Romantic Organ" sound. And smaller combinations supply an unusual variety of musical diversions. On the lower keyboard, the Diapason chorus conveys the traditional or "Classic Organ" sound. Other voices provide adequate accompaniment and solo possibilities.

Multi-Directional Sound

Three amplifier and speaker systems produce up to 100 watts of power for new depth of sound. One of five inbuilt speakers is a two-speed Leslie that provides exciting effects, magnificent flutes, special flute celeste. The Artist's exceptionally wide listening range can be still further extended with external speakers.

Exclusive Chorus Tab

Adds warmth and breadth to any ensemble. Automatically throws the various octaves of the organ slightly out of tune with each other so when octave couplers are used the chorus effect is charmingly emphasized.

Other Features

The Artist features an independent tone generator for each pitch...two 61-note manuals...and a 32-note pedalboard meeting exact A.G.O. specifications. Standard-size console has locking fall board and finished back.

Examine the many fine features of the Artist at your Conn dealers soon. Or, write for illustrated brochure now to Conn Organ Corporation, Elkhart, Indiana.

f e s t i v a l o f F l a n d e r s

Though Belgians have contributed greatly from the earliest days to church and organ music, Belgium is not so famed as a center of church music these days as some of its neighbors. The Festival of Flanders is a 15-week all-summer attempt to attract more attention to the importance of the Low Country in the past and present development of music.

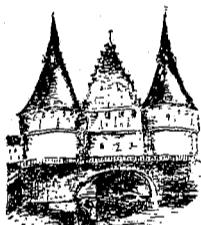

The Festival of Flanders is a kind of progressive artistic banquet with three-week courses in each of five Flemish towns comprising the total menu. Opening in late April at Antwerp, it moves to Ostend, then to Tongerin, on to Brussels and finally to Ghent. At Tongerin and Ghent especially, a considerable emphasis is placed on organ and church music. Each of these cities has a beautiful and ancient cathedral which plays a large role in its civic life.

12th century house

We hope to include Tongerin's activities in some future year. This last season we were able to spend enough time in the fascinating old town of Ghent (Gand, of the part this town plays in the overall picture of the Festival of Flanders.

Ghent is still trying to find the perfect format for its three weeks of festival. In 1963 it divided into Historical Week, Creative Week (with emphasis on the contemporary) and finally International Week. It seems likely that the future direction of Ghent's three weeks may very well be summed up in the slogan, New Works in Ancient Settings.

Spires span the river

Though music was foremost as a festival attraction, the festival also included art and drama. The music itself covered a broad spectrum — chamber music, opera and symphony as well as music more especially in our field. The official co-operation of the Ministry of Culture, Belgian National Radio, banks and business organizations, a group of universities and various other organizations make the ambitious and expensive project possible. Radio networks in some 30 other countries co-operate in broadcasting major events.

Certainly the most striking feature of Ghent's segment, from our point of view, is the part the Orgel Centrum plays. This group, headed by Gabriel Verschraegen, organist of the St. Bavo Cathedral and prominent teacher at the Royal Conservatory of Music in Ghent, in 1963 staged an international Bach competition which attracted 39 contestants from 14 countries. Private sponsors, the school ministerium, and government agencies of culture, tourism, etc., are members of the Orgel Centrum.

The prizes in 1963 were substantial: first prize of 25,000 Belgian francs (more than $500 at last summer's exchange rate) plus a fee of about $150 for a radio concert with symphony orchestra; second prize $400 plus radio fee; third $300 plus fee, and fourth $150 plus fee — in all, a financially ambitious project. The competition was in three parts. All 39 contestants were heard in the required numbers (all-Bach, of course): the Toccata, Adagio and Fugue in C and any one of the six trio sonatas. Twelve survived this first ordeal, including the only American competing, Joyce Jones, Texas-born organist currently living and studying in Europe. The remaining twelve then were heard in two large Bach works of their own choice. The four remaining from the semi-finals were required to perform an unpublished organ concerto written for each contestant by one of his own countrymen. These performances on the organ in the conservatory were with the Belgium Chamber Orchestra conducted by George Maes. All 39 contestants had to come prepared for this kind of occasion.

W. Sebastian Meyer of Berlin was the first prize winner. We have previously reported the fine impression he made in the 1963 International Organ Week in Nuremberg. Second place was won by Lionel Rogg of Geneva about whom the judges said he was "worthy of first place in any competition" except against young Meyer. (We have reviewed Mr. Rogg's Bach recordings in these pages.) Mr. Rogg's concerto for organ and orchestra, by the way, was his own composition. Jozef Sluys of Belgium was third and Marinette Extermann of Geneva was fourth. Each of the young men is 27, Miss Extermann just 22.

Medieval tower

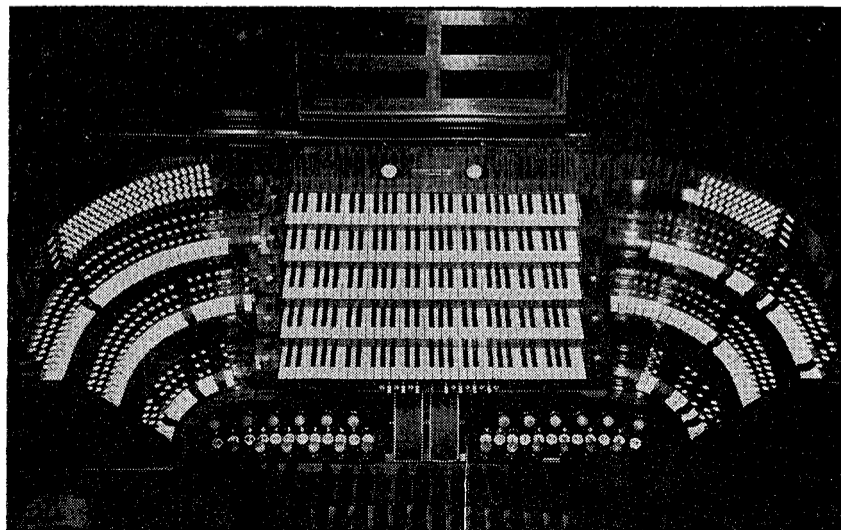

The international character of the competition is indicated by a listing of the national representation: Austria 3, Belgium 4, Czechoslovakia 2, England 1, France 1, Germany 10, Hungary 6, Italy 2, Yugoslavia 2, Netherlands 2, Poland 1, Rumania 1, Switzerland 4, USA 1.

The jury headed appropriately by host Verschraegen included: Alois Forer, Vienna; Charles Hens, Brussels; Friedrich Högnar, Munich; Anton Nowakowski, Stuttgart; Jiri Reinberger, Prague, and Pierre Segond, Geneva.

Mr. Verschraegen hopes the Bach competition — a highly responsible and costly undertaking — can become a feature of the Festival of Flanders at intervals more frequent than the present every five years schedule. Much more preliminary information distributed in America for the next competition may possibly stimulate a wider Western Hemisphere representation.

After the Bach competition, most of the rest of the Ghent segment of the festival pales a little by comparison as far as our fields are concerned.

Giant Klais five-manual console controls organs from widely contrasted eras.

Diagonal view across nave shows position of old organ whose case provides our cover; note examples of many periods.

The organ in the Cathedral of St. Bavo in Ghent is a strange marriage of an old and good Flemish organ with a mid-1930s German organ built by Klais of Bonn for a Belgian National Exposition at Brussels. All this is controlled by a huge five-manual Klais console placed where the old instrument can hardly be heard at all and where even the newer instrument is at less than a vantage point. Many designs for rebuilding or restoring have been discussed; we wonder what the final solution will be. The instrument is, naturally, at its best in the hands of Gabriel Verschraegen, titular organist of the Cathedral, and his Czech-born deputy, Karel Paukert. In the festival it was also played by Pierre Segond in a French program which we missed and by Fernando Germani.

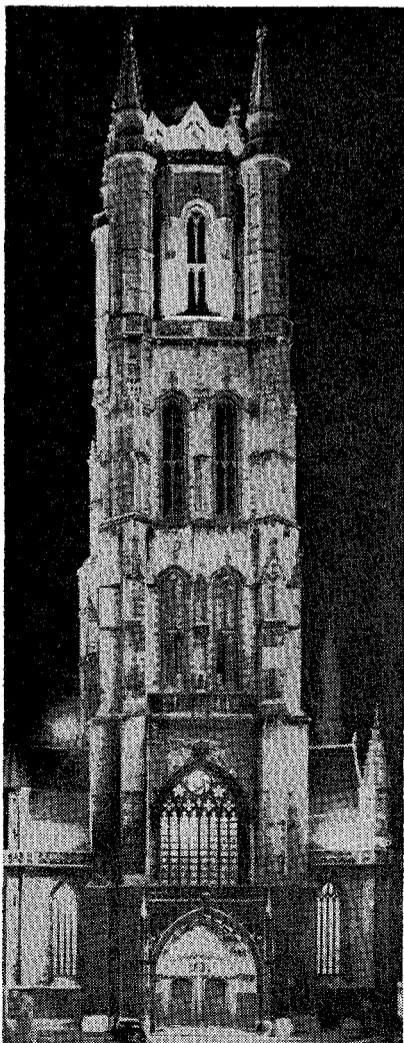

Some of the other events we attended were a premiere of a strange work for chamber orchestra, speech choir and speech soloists by Wladimir Vogel, based on the Flemish legend of Thyl Claes. The overall effectiveness of the combination was considerable due mainly to the extraordinarily well-trained speech choir. The music was largely a series of effects, not many of them original or very striking. There was little in the way of music in the work at all memorable.

Verdi's Don Carlos (the Schiller play upon which it is based was performed the preceding night and is set in this very area) was given a very satisfactory performance at the old and charming opera house within our stay.

The old town itself, its castle, the cathedral with the magnificent VanEyck altarpiece, The Adoration of the Lamb, the fine food, the kindness and friendliness of the people, all combine to make Ghent a pleasant and rewarding place to visit.

The next Bach competition (we will keep you informed!) should attract organists from abroad in droves. We know of no other playing competition which quite equals it.

Gabriel Verschraegen is organist of the Cathedral of St. Bavo and director of the Orgel Centrum responsible for the competition.

Surely the most celebrated organist in all of Belgium is this lovely angel at the organ from the group of heavenly musicians which form but a single panel of the famed Van Eyck altarpiece in Ghent Cathedral.

This wondrous work of art, Adoration of the Lamb, painted by the Brothers Van Eyck between 1420 and 1432 attracts thousands of visitors to Ghent every year. It is only one of the many attractions which make a visit to Ghent so rewarding.

Czech-born Karel Paukert is deputy organist at the Cathedral.

First prize winner Meyer plays the concerto for organ, strings and timpani written especially for his part in the competition by Max Bauman, of Berlin's Hochschule für Musik. George Maes conducts the Belgian Chamber Orchestra.

CANTATAS

The Sower and the Seed

Robert Graham

The Easter story presented through the parable of The Sower. An easy-to-learn, easy-to-perform cantata for junior and senior high school choirs. Ten numbers written in unison, two-part and occasional three-part style with simple, but imaginative accompaniment. Performance time: about 20 minutes. $1.00

Record — an excellent teaching aid when used with the cantata. Sung by a youth choir. 12-inch, 33 1/3 rpm. Monophonic. $3.98

Lord Most Holy

Rose Marie Cooper

Especially written for 9- through 12-year olds, this cantata combines choral singing and Scriptural narration to tell the story of the life of Christ including his suffering, death, resurrection and ascension. Selections are from easy to medium in difficulty. Performance time: about 15 minutes. $1.00

Golgotha

Robert Graham

Easily performed by large or small choirs, this cantata describes events before and during the crucifixion of Jesus. Arranged for mixed voices with soprano, alto, tenor, and bass solos. Over-all continuity is increased by narration with instrumental background. $1.25

Record — sung by the Broadman Chorale, features choral interpretation and narration. 12-inch. 33 1/3 rpm. Monophonic. $3.98

The Resurrection Story

Claude Almand

A beautiful contemporary cantata based on the suffering, death, and resurrection of Christ. An excellent cantata for trained church choirs, or college and seminary choral groups. Mixed voice arrangement includes soprano, tenor, and baritone solos. $1.50

Record — sung by a 450-voice choir with organ accompaniment. 12-inch. 33 1/3 rpm. Monophonic or Stereophonic. $3.98

CONSOLE MOVABLE IN CHANCEL

Clarence Mader Collaborates on 3-
 Manual for New Contemporary
 Building in California

A three-manual organ for Herrick Chapel, Occidental College, Los Angeles, Cal., has been ordered from the Schlicker Organ Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y. The instrument was designed by Clarence Mader in collaboration with Herman L. Schlicker.

The chapel is of contemporary architecture. The organ will be installed in the rear of the chancel on two sides. The console is to be movable with plug-ins at the right front and the right rear of the chancel; it can also be moved to the front of an extended chancel for recitals.

Fifty registers with 68 ranks will total 3098 pipes.

NEW AEOLIAN-SKINNER REPLACES LOSS BY FIRE

ST. MICHAEL AND ALL ANGELS

Episcopal Church in Baltimore Has
New Layout for Instrument —
Robert Bagdon is Organist

The Church of St. Michael and All Angels, Baltimore, Md. was destroyed by fire in June 1961. The Aeolian-Skinner organ designed by William Brackett, G. Donald Harrison and Joseph S. Whiteford, was a casualty.

In restoring the church, plans were made for additional organ space. The new design, dictated by altered acoustics, was prepared by Robert J. Bagdon, present organist, and Donald Gillett of the Aeolian-Skinner Company. An antiphonal division is being proposed.

The new organ was dedicated in September.

FAURE'S MESSE BASSE for women's voices was sung twice on the same program Oct. 30 at Christ Church, Rathgar, Dublin, Ireland. Olive Smith conducted the Olivian Singers with Alan Cowle at the organ.

L. Cameron Johnson has assumed duties at the U. S. Coast Guard Military Academy, New London, Conn., as director of cadet musical activities and organist-choirmaster of the chapel. He holds his bachelor's degree from Yankton College, the master's degree in church music from the Eastman School of Music, where he has done three year's work toward the doctorate under a fellowship from the National Defence Act Title 4 program.

DARKE CLOSSES 75th YEAR

IN FESTIVAL HALL RECITAL

Harold Darke, British organist and composer familiar to many American organists, celebrated the end of his 75th year with a recital Sept. 29 at London's Festival Hall, using the controversial "classic" organ there in a deliberately Romantic fashion.

Musical Opinion called the recital "as much a classic example of organ management as of compelling playing." The taxing program included the Bach Passacaglia and Fugue, the Prelude and Fugue in G major and several chorales, the Willan Introduction, Passacaglia and Fugue, Dr. Darke's own Chorale Prelude on a Theme by Tallis and the Reubke Sonata on Psalm 94.

DESIGN LARGE ORGAN FOR WHITTIER CHURCH

GLOECKLER & COMPANY BUILD

First Christian in California Town
Has Extensive Program — Richard Unwin Is Organist

Gloeckler and Co., a subsidiary of Pipe Organs, Inc., Los Angeles, Calif. has completed the installation at First Christian Church, Whittier. The church, which has the largest membership of any church of the denomination west of the Mississippi, has a varied and extensive musical program, under the direction of Dr. Eugene M. Riddle.

The organ has been designed to support the choir and congregational singing. Elements were included to permit full use for recital and concert work. The great and positiv and most of the pedal are unenclosed and exposed. Several ranks were retained from the prior instrument with 41 ranks of new pipework. The completed instrument contains 61 ranks, playable from the four-manual console.

The organ was designed by Kenneth L. Wright, vice-president of Pipe Organs, Inc., and general manager of Gloeckler & Co., in consultation with Dr. Riddle and Richard Unwin, organist at the church.

Emerson Richards

THE MAN AND HIS WORK by William King Covell

HIS INFLUENCE ON AMERICAN ORGANS by William H. Barnes

Senator Emerson Richards died at his home on the Boardwalk at Atlantic City Oct. 21 at the age of 79. His ancestors had come from Germany late in the 17th century and had settled in Pennsylvania. His father, who had been in the construction business in Philadelphia moved to Atlantic City in the early 1880s at a time when the shore resort was developing rapidly.

Emerson L. Richards was born in a small frame house July 8, 1884. He was educated in the public schools of Atlantic City and at the law school of the University of Pennsylvania, taking his law degree in 1904. In 1911 he was elected to the state assembly, thus beginning a political career that was to last 23 years, to include service in both houses and to result in the passage of many laws providing for social and political reform as well as highway construction, bridge and tunnel building and other important undertakings. He was in office while Woodrow Wilson was governor of New Jersey; many of the laws sponsored by Wilson were made possible through his co-operation. The political revolution that began in 1932 with the first election of Franklin Roosevelt resulted in the close of the senator's political career when his term ran out in 1934.

The senator's concern for the organ was a deep one. He was one of the first to acquire a collection of books dealing with the subject and he subscribed to organ publications from many countries. He was one of the first of that company of Americans to visit Europe, meet European organists and organ builders and to see, hear and try the most interesting of surviving organs from older times. His published accounts of his many trips are familiar to most organists already active in the 1930s.

The senator's own contributions to organ building, other than in writing, lay in his own organs, the organs of public ownership which were built under his guidance at Atlantic City, and the organs for which he provided specifications, supervision while under construction and installation or both. Of this third group, the organ at Millville, N.J. in the Methodist Church, is the instrument to which he gave the greater part of his thought and attention in recent years.

As for his own organs, Senator Richards' first was a small tracker affair, blown by a water engine; he used to tell how, on cold winter nights, he used to shut off the water and drain the pipes to prevent a freezeup that would render his cherished organ unplayable! A somewhat larger player organ replaced this first instrument. It was sold when a much larger organ was built for the music room of his home, but this one in turn was sold early in the 1930s. It was succeeded by a four-manual of considerable size, for the accommodation of which the back wall of the music room was removed and the space formerly occupied by several bathhouse compartments in the building directly behind were made available for the organ. This instrument survived the war, but in 1946, when all builders were overloaded with unfilled contracts, he sold his organ to a church in a large western city, and with the proceeds set to work to plan a still larger organ. A part of the great chorus, pipes and chests, was built by G. Donald Harrison; another part of the great came from Hans Steinmeyer; for the enclosed divisions, chests from an Aeolian residence organ were reconditioned; pipework came from various sources, old and new, American and European. The assembling was spread over several years. The organ never became wholly playable but its best parts, such as the Harrison and Steinmeyer choruses including no less than five mixtures of some 20 ranks, were truly splendid in effect. Never heard as a whole, the organ was destroyed with the senator's home in a disastrous fire Oct. 7, 1958. The modern house built on the same site the following year did not have an organ, although the senator hoped for a smaller instrument for his new library.

Mention must be made also of three large organs built for the city of Atlantic City and installed, one in the high school, the other two in the convention hall. The high school organ, with that he designed for St. Mark's Episcopal Church, Philadelphia, was one of two pioneer attempts to reconstruct in this country fine choruses comparable in character to the work of Edmund Schulze. Due to incomplete knowledge and unfavorable acoustics, these experiments were not altogether successful but an attempt to follow so excellent a model should be remembered to the senator's credit.

In the later 1920s the senator found time to work out designs for the two organs in the immense auditorium then being built at Atlantic City. The smaller was a large four-manual instrument built by the W. W. Kimball Company of Chicago under the senator's directions, and was installed in the gallery of the ballroom of the auditorium building. This organ, with a stop-key console of theater-organ type and including some extensions but much more straight work, was finished shortly after the auditorium itself in 1929. In the same year specifications for a much larger organ for the main auditorium were put out for bids. The contract was assigned to Midmer-Losh, Merrick, Long Island; on May 9, 1929, two of the auxiliary sections, installed above the ceiling of the hall, were first tried a few weeks later. The organ as a whole was first used publicly May 11, 1932. The instrument has been discussed in periodicals of many kinds, a landmark of its period; its fame is worldwide.

The younger generation of organists may not realize the fact that back in the 1920's there was a type of organ being built in America by all of our leading builders, with which there was much complacency. In reality, however, from today's point of view, these organs were lacking in a great many features, now considered essential for a good organ.

Emerson Richards was known in the twenties as the "Senator;" he was not only a state senator on the Republican side for a dozen years before Roosevelt, but he was a political boss, and president of the New Jersey state senate. He was also a successful lawyer, with a flare for pungent and effective argument. His consuming interest above all else was in the organ. It is, of course, this facet of his many activities that is of particular interest to us in the organ world. It is this interest that I wish to analyze and discuss.

One thing that endeared the "senator" to many organists in the twenties, (the prohibition days) was his ability to load the trunk of his big Cadillac with alcoholic beverages of reasonably safe quality and distribute them generously and freely to the thirsty organists attending the conventions of the old NAO and the AGO. The organ discussions, late at night in the senator's hotel room, accompanied by the cup that cheers, were memorable occasions. I remember so well being a participant in many such sessions. I am not sure that fundamental truth was reached with all of the discussions of organs that took place, but one thing became obvious; the increasing dissatisfaction with the organs that were being built in America at the time.

It was this dissatisfaction that led the senator to visit Europe and find out at first hand what the European organs were like, and to hear for himself whether these organs, both old and new, had something American organs lacked. When Henry Willis III visited this country first in 1925, the senator spent much time with him, showing him many specimens of what were considered the best examples of the organs of that period in America. Mr. Willis' comments and criticisms made a deep impression on the senator.

He later visited England, and heard many examples of Willis organs, both of the original "Father" Willis, and of the present Henry Willis. He also became acquainted with the famous Schulze diapasons and the diapason choruses so nobly represented in the Schulze organs at Tyne Dock, Doncaster and Armley in England. This was the start of the senator's crusade for changes in the tonal design of American organs.

I have mentioned that the senator had a flare for putting his thoughts on paper in a pungent and readable form. This he did in both The American Organist and THE DIAPASON is a series of articles.

He also had opportunity to prove his newly acquired knowledge, in the design of two great organs, the Atlantic City High School organ, and the one in the Atlantic City Auditorium.

In the meantime, impetus was given to the English influence on the design of American organs, when Arthur Hudson Marks hired G. Donald Harrison in 1927 to become tonal director of the Skinner Organ Company. At first, Ernest Skinner welcomed Mr. Harrison with open arms, but it soon became apparent that their ways were far apart. A few years later, M. P. Möller hired Richard Whitelegg as tonal director. Then Austin Organs, Inc. hired Richard Piper as tonal director. Mr. Harrison, Mr. Whitelegg and Mr. Piper were all trained in the Willis factory in London, and English organ building. The first two men had a profound effect on American organ building in the thirties (the depression years) and later came Mr. Piper in the fifties and sixties.

The senator and Donald Harrison became fast friends and I am sure both men exerted a considerable influence over the other. By 1931, Mr. Richards decided to look further into European organ building, particularly the German, and upon his return from a visit there in the fall of 1930 wrote a series of articles for The American Organist that appeared in 1931. I have dug out my copies of these articles and I think I find here the first serious appraisal of German organs by an American enthusiast. True, Oscar Schminke, Caspar Koch, and other dyed-in-the-wool German organists had written articles before this on German organs. But I believe that the real impact came from Mr. Richards' articles.

In his first article on German organs (T.A.O. April 1931) Mr. Richards states: "We shall not begin at the beginning, but let us start from the home of Hans Steinmeyer, Germany's most important organ builder and journey through Bavaria. For here we will be introduced to the organs which, when better known, are bound to upset much of our complacent satisfaction with the tonal equipment of the American organ and the musical outlook of the American organist." I have italicized the preceding sentence as being a prophesy of what has happened to American organ building the last thirty years. The senator saw it at that time, and worked hard to make his prophesy come true.

He says further: "Bach and Reger are the musical gods of the German organ world. The older organs interpret Bach, the newer ones Reger. An organ that will do both is the perfect organ of today. Consequently the organ of Bach and his predecessors is not the organ of modern Germany, anymore than the orchestra of Mozart is the ensemble of Strauss. In Bavaria we will find the two artistic traditions struggling for supremacy."

Organ Builders

- Rebuilding
- Repairing
- Contractual Servicing
- For Unexcelled Service

This portrait shows Senator Richards at the very height of his career.

Other organists such as the late Melville Smith, Quimby, and Walter Blodgett talked Walter Holtkamp into building some organs in Cleveland with the pipes in the open. While these earlier organs of Holtkamp were by no means authentic examples of the classic German organs, they were a start in this direction.

But Mr. Richards' articles on the German organ, quoting stoplists and considerable voicing details of both the classic and modern German organs, I am satisfied gave a push towards the German classic organ now being built by American builders in more or less modified form. I think that we are all agreed today that the German is much the most dominating of any of the European influences on American organ building. There are exceptions of course. Lawrence Phelps, of Casavant, has studied ancient French organs, and his firm is building organs today with this influence dominating. This is also a great tradition.

Mr. Richards' inquiring mind, his gift for expressing his ideas, his dissatisfaction with what was being done in American organ building in the twenties, and his determination to do something about it, was perhaps the greatest of any of the various influences working in the thirties to create the American classic organ.

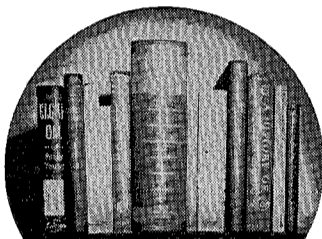

Granted that today there are many varieties of this type of organ, and that it is impossible to define what is meant precisely by this phrase. Many varieties of the American classic organ all have one thing in common. They all have clarity and good ensembles, many mixtures and mutations, and classic organ literature can be played successfully in accordance with the composer's intentions on such instruments. Some can do this and little more, while others are more versatile, and can play both the classic as well as the so-called romantic organ music of the 19th century, the early 20th, and contemporary music.

It is such men as the late Emerson Richards that helped to bring us where we are today. For the last 10 years he was inactive in organ matters, and had ceased to write about organs. But in his prime he was a colorful, aggressive thinker and writer about organ design, and should have a rightful place in any appraisal of important men in organ building.

Today it appears that the organ of Bach has won out in the thinking of many of the contemporary German builders. Notably, Rudolph von Beckerath, one of Germany's leading classic organ builders, has exemplified this in the large tracker organ in St. Paul's Catholic Cathedral at Pittsburgh. Many more examples might be quoted of course, both in Germany and this country.

The popularity of the German classic organ in America was given a great impetus, as most of us know, by E. Power Biggs in his long series of broadcasts from the Busch-Reisinger museum at Harvard. Here, Donald Harrison built a version of a classic German organ in the thirties that became famous. Even though this has since been replaced by a more authentic version of a classic Dutch organ by Flentrop, the start was made with this earlier version by Harrison who was inspired to build this first example in America by Richards as well as Biggs.

New Books

Three of the books which reached us this month will have interest for certain segments of our readership.

Viktor Lukas' Orgelmusikführer (Reclam, Stuttgart, Germany) is a useful little handbook, especially as regards German organ music. Its information is brief and sketchy; it does not attempt the more usual German thoroughness. We have already used it successfully to check on a contemporary German organ composer not even listed in our other sources.

A handbook issued by Novello, Oxford and Stainer and Bell, jointly, entitled Editing Early Music, would be helpful to any person preparing any music for publication; it is brief, specific and inexpensive.

A fictionalized version of the life of Pietro Yon, The Heavens Heard Him will provoke conflicting reactions even among those who knew and admired the famed longtime organist of St. Patrick's Cathedral. It is frankly sentimental; the picture it gives is the idealized one a son and a friendly woman can be expected to collaborate in creating. The rather young and the rather old, we think, are most likely to be among its readers. Vera B. Hammann and Mario C. Yon are the authors, Exposition Press, New York City, the publisher.

$5.00, and What You Can Get for It

- ... For your permanent possession, any two (2) Shawnee Press Reference Recording Albums of choral repertory — with complete scores ($10.00 value), PLUS ...
- ... Single copies of ALL NEW CHORAL MUSIC published by Shawnee Press, as released. (Last year, it amounted to over $20.00 worth of music.) PLUS ...
- ... The booklets: "Tone Syllables" by Fred Waring; and "Improving Music Reading in the Choral Rehearsal" by Dr. Lara Hoggard; and "Hearing and Singing" by Luigi Zaninelli. PLUS ...
- ... Advance notice of various clinic, workshop and concert activities of the Fred Waring organization.

The four points above give a thumbnail sketch of what you receive for your $5.00 enrollment fee in Music Library Associates of Shawnee Press. Actually, it amounts to more than that.

Membership in Library Associates is, we sincerely believe, one of the finest investments a choral director, school, or church can make in keeping up-to-date on new developments in the field of choral music. (Ask the director who is already a member.)

It is not new. The Library Associates plan has been in continuous operation for well over ten years, and boasts a worldwide membership that includes alert, enthusiastic choral directors who are "prime movers" in their own communities.

As to publishing policy, Shawnee Press focuses on the living musician: we accept the greatness of composers of other eras, but unless we believe that some significant contribution can be made by re-printing their work, we believe our function as publishers is to work with new, untried, and "unheard of" music and musicians.

We publish the work of many of the Ford Foundation composer-in-residence award winners, church music composers, composers of art music, functional composers of dance and popular song music, and — a unique musical phenomenon of our age — the work of highly creative arrangers, musicians who add their individual stamp to the styling of the words and music of songwriters. In short, a comprehensive cross-section of music as it exists in America today.

If you would like to keep up with the dynamic world of today's choral music, we are sure you will value membership in Library Associates far and away beyond the $5.00 enrollment fee.

Mark Smith has become organist and choirmaster at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Belvedere, Cal., across the bay from San Francisco. He began his duties Nov. 1. He leaves the post as organist for the First Unitarian Society of San Francisco after nearly ten years.

Mr. Smith received his MMus in organ last June from the University of the Pacific, Stockton. Among his organ teachers have been George Faxon, Boston, William Robinson Boone, Portland, Ore., Charles Schilling, Stockton and Pierre Cochereau in Paris. He is the sub-dean of the San Francisco AGO Chapter.

Gordon C. Ramsey has been appointed organist and choir director of the Burncoat Baptist Church, Worcester, Mass. He was previously organist-choirmaster of St. John's Church-on-the-Green, North Haven, Conn. He graduated from Yale University in 1963. While in New Haven he studied with G. Huntington Byles and was master carillonneur of Yale University.

In addition to his duties at the Burncoat Church, Mr. Ramsey is associate organist and instructor in English at Worcester Academy.

Now you see just how traditional the new G-100 Hammond Organ is. Who wouldn't be proud to play one. And to own one.

The Hammond G-100 Series Organ is designed both mechanically and tonally to operate exactly as a pipe organ. The console is authentic in every detail. It has only the controls you find on a pipe organ so that an organist can play it as he would a standard pipe organ.

And just as you'd expect in a well-voiced organ, every stop will sound as it should. There is no unification, borrowing or duplexing. Each stop is separately derived with a unique quality of tone. And even the effect of opening and closing the swell shades has been reproduced.

No Tuning Ever

But we've saved the biggest and best news for last. The new G-100's tone is produced by Hammond's famous tone wheel generator. This means no tuning ever. And constant pitch always. No other organ of the size and scope of the G-100 has this feature.

And it will mean a substantial saving in maintenance costs year after year.

Now, take a look at the specifications. We're sure that after you compare all organs you'll be more certain than ever that it was worthwhile waiting for the new G-100 Hammond Organ.

When you hear this magnificently voiced instrument, try to keep in mind that you can buy it for less than $350 per manual speaking stop!

In 1926, when the Diocese of Blackburn was carved out of the Diocese of Manchester, the Church of St. Mary the Virgin was made the cathedral. This busy manufacturing town is about twenty-five miles northwest of Manchester, in the center of a vast industrial section whose chief products are cotton spinning and weaving, and the making of machinery. Coal mining is also a major industry.

There have been three or four former churches on the site of the present cathedral. The first was most likely in Saxon times. A Norman edifice is said to have been in existence in the 12th century. About two hundred years later this was rebuilt in the reign of Edward III. In 1540 yet another church was built in the then prevailing Gothic style. This building became dilapidated and, because of the rapidly growing population and importance of the town in the area, it was decided, in 1820, to build the present church. It was consecrated in 1826.

This church was built in a free and fanciful version of the Perpendicular style. A little difficult to get used to, for me, was the plaster vaulting in the style of the 14th century which was put in place after a fire in 1831. Very little of the 16th century building exists, although the foundations are intact just below the ground level.

Outside, the building, as it stands today, with its clerestoried nave and dignified, sturdy western tower of the older church, together with the modern transepts presents a picture of progress in this young and growing diocese. Because of rising costs, elaborate plans for the enlarging of the building have had to be abandoned; however, a modified plan is being worked out whereby a certain amount of building and elaboration will be undertaken.

The oldest part of the inside is the west end. A notable feature of this part of the building is that the pillars are monoliths, that is, they are single pieces of stone. Just inside the west door, to the left, is a model showing the expansions as originally proposed. A model of the modified plan can be seen in the south transept.

On the panelling of the west gallery is a beautiful display of the wood carvers art in the form of heraldry. This contains coats of arms of civic and county communities that make up the diocese. Also in this west end are two chapels, the Chapel of the Holy Spirit, and the Chapel of All Souls.

Looking toward the east one cannot fail to see the exquisite rood on its beam. It is truly a beautiful piece of craftsmanship. Beneath the rood stands the nave altar. This was made by the same artisans who were responsible for the other wood work. Close examination will reveal the great amount of Christian symbolism incorporated in the decoration of this magnificent work.

ENGLISH

At the crossing, over which it is hoped that some day will rise the great central tower with its lantern, one is aware that things are really happening in this cathedral. The new work was begun in 1937 and still continues.

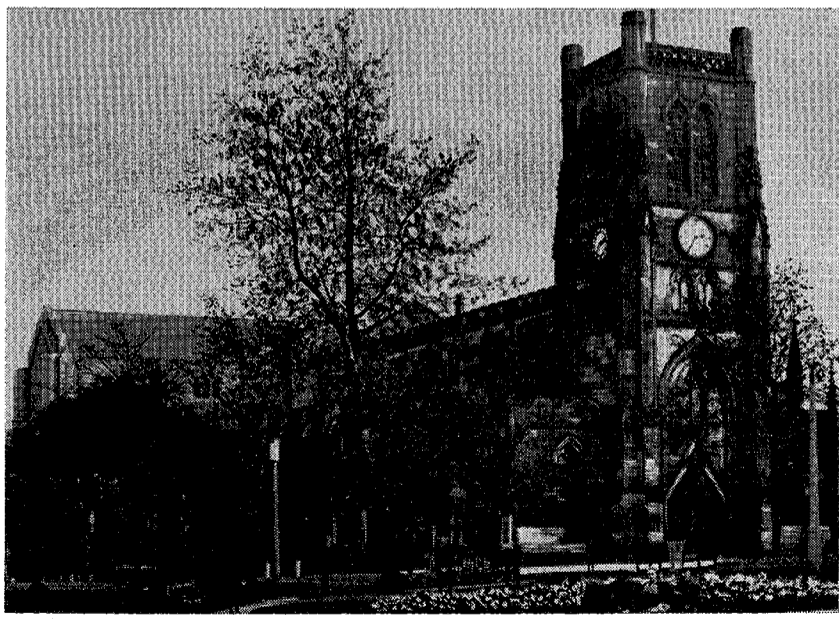

Visitors will be most interested in the 15th century canons' stalls, or misericords, in the choir. These seats are one of the great treasures of the cathedral. The carvings under the seats, as is frequently the case, display much humor. In this there are, among others, representations of an ape hunt, and a fox in a pulpit preaching to a congregation of geese.

Because the ground level falls away rapidly at the east end there is much room for accommodations in the crypt. Below the north transept is a splendid song school for use of the choir, which assures the continuity of the original song school founded in 1430. Also in this wing is the muniment room where all the cathedral and diocesan records are kept.

The music at Blackburn is in the capable hands of Thomas L. Duerden who has been organist here since 1939. He was recently cited by the Royal School of Church Music in an article as "having maintained a high standard of music without some of the traditions of the old-style cathedrals". This is high praise indeed. The organ here is rather interesting in that it is the only organ in any English cathedral built by the French firm of Cavallé-Colle. This was recently relocated in the new arches at the crossing. The entire instrument has been fitted with electric action, making for greater flexibility.

It is true that Blackburn may not have the glamor and attractiveness for the tourist, but this is a place to see industrial England at work, and for these people, this church is their Cathedral.

The Cathedral at Blackburn is young as English cathedrals go, the present building having been built in 1826.

CARLISLE

After spending several days at the popular sea-side resorts of Blackpool and Morecambe, scenes of much childhood activity, and visiting in the beautiful Lake District, we soon came to the object of this part of our quest, the Cathedral Church of the Holy and Undivided Trinity at Carlisle.

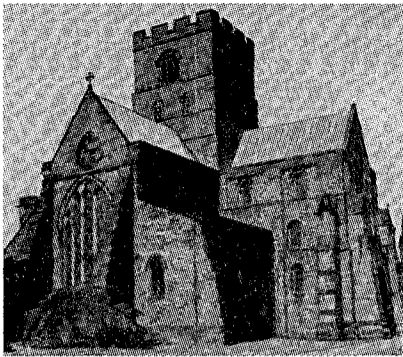

The cathedral stands pleasantly amid the green lawn of its Close on high ground at the edge of the old city, and not far from the castle. As we approached from the east we first discovered a sign board "thermometer" which registered the amount of gifts to a restoration fund. I don't remember the amount being sought, but I do remember being amazed that the "mercury" was nearly at the top indicating that the fund was very nearly subscribed in full. The east end was wrapped in scaffolding, and it was quite evident that work was being done.

In 1123, the first church was completed, and Henry I endowed a priory of Augustinian canons to serve it. The church became a cathedral in 1133 when the newly constituted bishopric was established. During the next century the Norman eastern limb was replaced by one on a larger scale. As greater breadth could be obtained only by expanding to the north, the new choir was out of line with the nave. Plagued by fires and gales which seemed to culminate in a destructive fire in 1292, the vaulted aisles of the choir was all that was spared. As a result of the 14th century transformation there came about the creation of a choir of utmost beauty and splendor.

Great destruction was wrought in 1645, when, after the siege, the Scottish troops destroyed nearly the whole nave. Of this Norman nave only a fragment of two bays remain. Originally 180 feet long, the truncated nave is now only 40 feet in length. Viewed from outside either from the north or the south the church seems to have only head and shoulders. Noticed on the exterior should be the contrast between the coldness of the grey sandstone used in the Norman nave, and the pleasantness of the red sandstone used in the Decorated and Perpendicular choir. Both of these materials were quarried in the neighborhood.

Entering the cathedral by the south door, which is the usual entrance into this building, we pass through the south transept, a part of the original Norman building. Standing under the crossing one sees to the west all that remains of the ancient nave. Immediately is noticed that the eastern arch on the north side has been drawn to the east. It is not the usual Norman half circle. A curious sight indeed. This comes about because of the subsidence of the piers that support the tower.

The nave now serves as the Regimental Memorial Chapel in which are placed banners, flags and records associated with the Border Regiment. It is impossible to be in this part of the cathedral without noticing the organ front on the screen. This is the only cathedral in England that has 32 foot pipes on the screen. Because of the smallness of the room the pipes take on a certain massiveness.

Proceeding by way of the north choir aisle, thence through the Salkeld screen, a most beautiful Renaissance work placed there by the cathedral's first dean, we come into the spacious choir. Another curious sight is the off-center pulpitum and organ front. This was brought about because, as already mentioned, it was only possible to enlarge the choir to the north and east. Notable in the choir is the carving on the capitals of the pillars. The practice of symbolically representing the months and seasons of the year in church goes back to the time of the catacombs. The only example in England of a complete series exists at Carlisle, where the representation of each month is on a capital to itself, and well preserved.

Looking to the east, the great east window comes into view above the canopy of the altar. This is the chief glory of the cathedral. The tracery is in the Decorated style. The height of this window is 58 feet and it is 32 feet wide. The glass in the tracery is original fourteenth century, but in the lower part the old glass was most likely destroyed at the time of the Reformation. This is called a "Doom" window. Topped by the Saviour seated as the Supreme Judge, the subject is the Session of Our Lord in Judgment. There are other Doom windows in old English stained glass at Bristol, Lincoln, Litchfield and Wells in addition to a few in parish churches, but of all these the Carlisle specimen is the finest.

The organ at Carlisle is a four-manual Harrison and Harrison, built in 1907, which replaced an earlier one by Willis. It has since been completely restored by Walker. The present organist is Andrew Sievwright. Sydney Nicholson was organist here before he went to Manchester in 1908. Traditional Evensong is sung everyday at 5:30 p.m. except Thursday when it is said, and Sunday when it is sung at 3:00 p.m.

Our tour will continue with a trip across the north of England for a visit to the cathedrals at Newcastle and Durham.

the full and brilliant sound of a trumpet, personally voiced by the renowned Anton Gottfried...*

That sound is pure. Rich and honest. And, like all the famous pipe sounds written on the winds of a 2,000 year heritage in pipe making, that sound is now authentically re-created in the glorious sound of Saville.

Never has the science of electronics been so exactly utilized in the reproduction of sound. Each perfectly voiced pipe is first carefully analyzed for its harmonic profile. Then, by the employ of highly sophisticated electronic instruments, each exact profile is duplicated by a unique tone generator system where its speech is pipe-scaled—voice by voice—pitch by pitch.

Think of it! The world's finest pipe sounds authentically re-created... in an organ custom made to your preference. Indeed, mere words cannot relate this experience. You must hear it in all its actuality...

WICKS AT WATERLOO, ONT. ENTERS ITS SECOND YEAR

32 RANKS IN ST. JOHN'S LUTHERAN

Douglas Campbell, Organist-Choirmaster Designed, Installed, Finished 3-Manual Instrument

The new three-manual Wicks organ in St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Waterloo, Ont., has entered its second year of service. The dedicatory recital was played last January by Dr. Charles Peaker, F.R.C.O. The balcony installation, featuring exposed great and pedal pipework, contains 32 ranks.

The specification was designed by Douglas Campbell, organist and choir-master at St. John's. J. B. Herdmann, former organist, also participated in the plans. Tonally, the instrument follows basically the traditional English lines. Nevertheless a clear and articulate ensemble has been achieved through the use of moderate pressures and limited nicking.

Arrangements were handled by Wicks district representative Douglas Campbell who also carried out the installation and tonal finishing.

TEN WATERLOO and Cedar Falls, Iowa Lutheran choirs participated in a massed choir concert Nov. 17 under the direction of Weston Noble, Luther College, Decorah, Iowa.

Steve Empson was appointed director of music at St. Raymond Church, The Bronx, N.Y., effective Sept. 1. The church, founded in 1842, operates two high schools and two grade schools and is presently undergoing a renovation program which will include two new pipe organs. A choir of men and boys is being established.

Mr. Empson is a graduate of the American Conservatory of Music, Chicago and was recently organist at Queen of Angels Church there. He has studied organ with Arthur B. Jennings, Edward Eigenschen and Claire Coci and has played recitals in midwestern states and in New York.
